

A New Battleground Strathcona Park

Logging Issue Raised

(Proposals have been made locally that virgin, mature, fir trees in the wilderness forest of Strathcona Park should be logged. Park conservationists bitterly opposed the idea. In three articles, the first appearing below, Times writer Arthur Mayse examines all sides of the question.)

Conservationists Ready to Fight

By ARTHUR MAYSE

Sprawled in the centre of Vancouver Island is a 504,000-acre battleground where the forces of conservation and utilization may soon climax years of skirmishing with an outright grapple of theories, principles and needs.

The area is Strathcona Park, first of British Columbia's four great wilderness playgrounds.

In the 51 years since this pocket empire of mountain and lake, stream and timber was sequestered by act of the provincial legislature, it has witnessed few changes other than those imposed by nature in her cycle of growth, decay and regeneration.

Today, however, the situation is no longer static.

The miners have gained a toehold in Strathcona. The loggers are edging toward its virgin Douglas fir stands.

The vacationing public, given limited access to Strathcona's splendors by a hydro-electric power development which opened its main waterway to smallboat owners, is eager for roads, trails and campsites.

The beleaguered parks branch of the Department of Recreation and Conservation, while firm in its "look but don't touch" stand, is casting increasingly nervous glances over its shoulder.

What, then, is the answer to the Strathcona problem—one which is being duplicated in greater or less degree all over North America as populations expand and natural resources dwindle?

Can a workable marriage be effected between conservation and utilization, a pair not always compatible in double harness?

Profit Adds Complication

In an attempt to suggest at least a partial solution, the Times has called on those best fitted to speak with authority on a subject hazed in certain aspects by emotion and complicated by the human desire for profit.

Today, Friday and Saturday, we offer the amalgam of fact and opinion turned up by that survey.

All-out conservationists—bitterly opposed to any tampering with Strathcona's present status as a "Class A" or completely primitive wilderness park—regard the logging industry as the prime threat to their ideal.

The loggers have swept to Strathcona's borders, following the timber inland across the east coast flats and ridges. This year, in a move aimed at obtaining funds with which to add a more accessible and desirable block to its limits, the parks branch has redesignated 26,000 acres on the western slopes as "Class B" parkland in which commercial logging may be carried on.

But to date, the only logging permitted within the "Class A" boundaries has been salvage made essential by fire and flood.

Since no direct application has been made to the parks branch for a permit to log, it might be assumed the parks branch is jumping at shadows. This isn't the case. The pressure is on, the spearhead

Lesage Pushes Takeover After Big Election Gains

Blaze Battled On Ship

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP)—Coast guard headquarters here said the crew of the fire-swept Greek freighter, Captain George, which is loaded with explosives, was still battling the flames at 3:15 p.m. EST. today. Coast Guard headquarters in New York earlier had reported the ship abandoned at mid-morning.

A spokesman at the United States Coast Guard base here said the situation aboard the 1,187-ton freighter remained critical, with gale winds and huge waves buffeting the ship.

A tanker—the Virginia, flying the Liberian flag—was reported to be standing by the cargo ship, which has a crew of 25.

Coast guard planes were reported here rushing also to the aid of the American schooner Curlew. Coast guard headquarters in New York said the 65-foot two-masted schooner had been abandoned but officials here said her six-man crew was still aboard.

The Greek freighter was reported wallowing in stormy seas 300 miles northeast of Bermuda and the schooner 90 miles northwest of Bermuda.

At 3 p.m., the coast guard in New York reported interception of messages from two unidentified ships in the area of the Captain George, saying: "Fire must be getting close to dynamite on board. Have heard one of escorting ships advising all ships to move away from Ss. Captain George."

The boy was thrown to the pavement. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Best Haven Hospital. The accident occurred at 11:50 a.m.

STARTED BY EXPLOSION

The freighter, Captain George caught fire after a terrific explosion Wednesday night. There was no indication of the cause of the explosion.

The crew battled the spreading flames through the night in the storm that kicked up some waves reported as high as 66 feet.

A U.S. Coast Guard plane circling overhead radioed at 9 a.m. the fire was out of control.

The 450-foot-long freighter, after leaving New Orleans, stopped at St. Marys, Ga., to pick up 400 tons of commercial explosives—described in one report by the coast guard this morning as "explosive bombs."

DISTRESS SIGNALS

BOSTON (UPI)—Coast guard and navy vessels were called to the assistance of two fishing vessels and a navy transport ship today as the result of an Atlantic storm that hampered the search for another missing vessel. The 73-foot scalloper Monte Carlo and the fishing vessel Moonlight, both out of Nantucket, Mass., sent "May Day" radio distress messages to the coast guard this morning.

On the diplomatic front, Prime Minister Nehru has sent a three-page reply to Chinese Premier Chou En Lai's Nov. 4 offer to withdraw, with concessions, an external affairs ministry spokesman said. He declined to disclose its contents.

Nehru has said publicly that India continues to stand on its demand that the Chinese withdraw to their positions before Sept. 8 when their penetration into northeast India began. The Chinese rejected this.

SUSPEND GUARANTEES

Earlier today it was announced that the government has suspended constitutional guarantees of individual rights and freedoms during the state of emergency declared last month because of the border fighting.

The government suspended equality before the law and constitutional articles guaranteeing protection of life and personal property, protection against arrest and detention in certain cases, and freedom of speech, association, movement and residence.

Meanwhile, a fleet of trucks this morning was moving emergency civil supplies to the northeast border state of Assam to overcome a five-week-old stoppage of river shipments caused by a steamer crew strike in east Pakistan.

Nehru, winding up a debate in the Indian Parliament Wednesday, said the meeting was proposed at the current GATT meeting in Geneva by representatives of the United States and Canada.

The meeting would seek relaxation of trade barriers affecting both primary and secondary products. It would pay special attention to the problems of less developed countries.

The precise date of the conference was yet to be determined. However, it would open at the earliest possible date in 1963.

Canada would be represented by Trade Minister Hees and possibly other cabinet ministers.

BORDER WAR

Indians Launch Big Attack

(Times News Services)

NEW DELHI—Indian army troops have launched their strongest offensive in the undeclared Himalayan border war with the Communist Chinese, a defence ministry spokesman said today.

He said the attacks were carried out on the northeast frontier and that an unknown number of Chinese were killed.

The Indian forces attacked Chinese positions near Walong, about 15 miles from the Burma border, and carried out offensive actions against a Red-held village near Jang, near the Bhutan border.

The spokesman said there were no Indian losses in the attacks, opened Wednesday.

FIGHTING CONTINUES

Latest reports said the fighting was still going on around Walong. The Indian troops consisted of a "strong patrol," the spokesman said.

Jang is just below the main Indian defence line on the Se Pass in the area of China's main thrust into India east of the Bhutan border.

From Peking, the official New China news agency reported that more than 1,000 Indian troops launched repeated attacks on Chinese frontier guards in the Walong area under heavy artillery cover Wednesday. The agency said the attacks were "repeatedly repelled."

Nehru has said publicly that India continues to stand on its demand that the Chinese withdraw to their positions before Sept. 8 when their penetration into northeast India began. The Chinese rejected this.

State department spokesman Lincoln White said that if the Soviet Union does build one, "I would assume appropriate measures would be taken."

LESAGE

Liberals Add Eleven Seats

QUEBEC (CP)—Premier Jean Lesage's Liberal government has its mandate from the people today to expropriate 11 private power companies in Quebec.

The Liberals Wednesday won the mandate they sought in calling the snap general election after 27 months in office by a two-to-one margin in the Legislative Assembly over the Union Nationale opposition.

The standings, compared with the results in the 1960 election, when the Liberals ended 16 years of Union Nationale rule:

1962-1960
Liberals 63 52
Union Nationale 31 42
Independent 1 1
Total 95 95

At dissolution Sept. 19, the Liberals held 54 seats as a result of gains in by-elections, the Union Nationale 40, and there was one independent.

Mr. Lesage said after re-election his cabinet today "will review legislation already started by our legal experts in connection with the nationalization (expropriation) of electricity in Quebec."

Johnson Avoided Major Issue

During the campaign, which started in late September, Mr. Johnson would not commit himself or his party on the expropriation plan, and suggested a referendum on the question.

The Liberals received a clear majority of the votes cast 116,617 or 56 per cent—and the Union Nationale had 88,117 votes, or 42 per cent.

There was a turn-over of 25 seats in the election, with the Liberals taking 17 from the Union Nationale—eight in rural areas—while losing eight rural seats to the opposition.

One of its losses was L'Islet where Andre Rousseau, trade and commerce minister, first elected in 1960, was the only cabinet minister to be defeated.

ROYAL HOUSEHOLD WILL BE STREAMLINED

LONDON (UPI) — Prince Philip announced Wednesday night that Queen Elizabeth plans to bring in efficiency experts to streamline the operation of the royal household. The Queen's husband announced the decision in a telex issued before his departure for the United States and Australia. He said the time-and-motion study will be the royal family's observance of "National Productivity Year."

...STRATHCONA PARK

A South Island company which has come out flatfooted with the claim that Strathcona fir stands should be opened to commercial logging.

This company, Victoria Plywood Limited, is supplied with "peeler" fir logs in part by its subsidiary, Sooke Lake Lumber Company. For some years past, it has been filling its log requirements by purchase from other timber owners.

Its spokesman is Victoria Plywood secretary Alex Hendry, who speaks plainly in his company publication. Here is a digest of Mr. Hendry's views:

"Since any program of development in Strathcona or the other wilderness parks will cost money, it will have to compete with all the other demands on the public purse."

Mature Stand of Timber

"Unless, therefore, we can find some means of finding the required revenue, it appears highly unlikely that there will be any development in the parks for many years to come."

"Virtually the whole of Strathcona Park is covered with a mature stand of timber of which the predominant species is Douglas fir. It is, therefore, a very valuable tract from a commercial point of view. A plan to log this timber on a long term basis would automatically provide the access roads and camp sites, and also the funds for other park purposes at no cost to the public. Probably of even greater general benefit, though, would be the hundreds of new jobs that such a program would create."

"Douglas fir lumber," Mr. Hendry continues, "has always enjoyed a preferred position in the markets of the world, and competent market observers state that there will be no enough Douglas fir plywood to satisfy the demand within five years."

"One of the principal objections raised to logging operations as we know them, is the scene of utter desolation that they create. People visualize the total area surrounding Buttle Lake shorn of its timber, and in its place a mass of half-burned slash blocking each little creek. While slash is inevitable, it can be gathered and thoroughly burned."

"Further, logging can be conducted on a patch system, so that whole mountainsides are not denuded at one fell swoop. This system is, in fact, standard practice on Forest Service timber sales because it assists in regeneration and reduces the fire hazard."

"Many are opposed to logging park timber because they feel that some logging operator would make large profits from the operation. Present Forest Service selling methods render this highly impossible, but to banish the last doubt, the project could be carried out by the service or the parks branch."

Feasibility of Plan Shown

"Such a course has several advantages, for it would then be possible to guarantee that everything was done to meet the highest standard. Roads would be built on a permanent basis and stringent slash removal requirements adopted. The usual industry planting programs would, of course, ensure rapid regeneration. As a matter of fact, the Greater Victoria Water District has already clearly demonstrated the feasibility of such a plan."

"Our confers are extremely long-lived, but the major portion of those in Strathcona Park are mature. This means that we cannot normally expect them to remain standing for much more than 50 or 100 years. They will then be replaced by young growth either naturally or artificially. In other words, in spite of our very best endeavors, our descendants 200 years from now will never see the type of forest that now clothes the mountains of Strathcona Park. To continue the present policy of non-development would, therefore, be a costly and useless sacrifice."

Mr. Hendry, to whom we will return later, speaks bluntly and well. He deserves a hearing—not as mouthpiece for our woods industries, a role which he emphatically disclaims—but as a lumberman of wide experience.

But his claims, according to Forest Service and parks branch experts, don't hold water.

"Our fir reserves," one top-echelon civil servant commented to the Times, "are much more extensive than Mr. Hendry suggests. The point seems to be that those reserves aren't available to his company!"

Just how extensive are our Douglas fir reserves, and what, precisely, does Strathcona offer in the way of mature fir timber?

On Friday, the Times will consider these and other questions raised by those who would turn the power saws loose in Strathcona Park.

NAPKIN COUNT COSTS FIRM $100 FINE

NUTLEY, N.J. (UPI)—A New York City paper napkin firm was fined $100 in Municipal Court here Wednesday for putting only 77 napkins in a box that advertised 80 napkins.

The charge was brought by the city's weights and measures department. They counted the napkins in thousands of packages put out by Park Tissue Mills, Inc., and found four other boxes with shortages.

Allan Schultz, president of the firm, pleaded guilty. He said the error was due to mechanical failure in his machinery.

EFFECT OF BOOZE CLINIC STUDY

By AB KENT

A booze-bent Skid Road "alky" can be more consistent than a tipping high school teacher, an attractive Victoria woman discovered last summer.

As one of 11 Canadians taking part with 238 other students in the Summer School of Alcohol Studies at Rutgers University, Mrs. Jean Ward had a chance to see the result of a behavior experiment.

Two groups—one from the backwash of society and the other from the teaching profession—were given $5 a head to be observed in a laboratory session.

"They were each given a bottle of liquor of their choice and told to drink," Mrs. Ward recalls.

A breath test disclosed that each group absorbed about the same amount of alcohol.

"But the Skid Road types sat quietly and drank until they passed out, while the teachers practically tore the place apart."

It was a vivid lesson of life for Mrs. Ward, and gave her an insight to the problem of dealing with people needing help for alcoholism.

She is secretary and public information officer for the Vancouver Island Alcoholism Foundation.

At her own expense, Mrs. Ward attended the 23-year-old annual school inaugurated by world-famous Dr. E. M. Jellinek at Yale University, where it was held until this year.

In three weeks the students covered every aspect of alcohol. "It was a wonderful experience working with these people from across the country," Mrs. Ward said.

LIONEL SPELLER

for amalgamation

Ambulance Driver Runs In Saanich

Lionel Speller, who favors the amalgamation of Victoria and Saanich, is to run for a seat on Saanich council in the December election.

"I'm all for amalgamation," said Mr. Speller, an ambulance driver living at 3628 Saanich Road. "At present we are only hearing one side of it—those against amalgamation."

Mr. Speller has been an unsuccessful candidate for Saanich council for the past three years.

He is the fifth man to say he will run for the council. But so far Councillor Harold Todd is the only person who has filed his nomination with Saanich municipal clerk Gordon Hayward.

Councillor Todd says he would like to see some of the amalgamation candidates backing up their statements.

"If people make statements they should be able to prove them," he said.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Myers and Robertson would not appeal their convictions and six-year sentences for bribing MacDonald.

The two men were named as co-promoters of the Wigwam Inn gambling casino, situated northeast of Vancouver. MacDonald testified that they offered him $1,000 in cash and other considerations to act as a lookout, warning them of any impending police raids.

The inn was raided last July 29 and MacDonald, his wife and three children were immediately given a round-the-clock guard at their North Vancouver home, says the newspaper.

News of the underworld plot leaked out about Aug. 2 and the guard was doubled, floodlights installed around the home, strange cars checked and extra patrols of the area begun.

When "The Frenchmen" arrived, the entire family was moved to an isolated camp on the west coast of Vancouver Island 16 miles from Ucluelet.

The newspaper says that at the end of the trial MacDonald collapsed and was placed under an oxygen tent in hospital suffering from pneumonia and pleurisy.

Polio Vaccine Back in Spring

B.C. will resume use of Sabin oral polio vaccine next spring. Health Minister Eric Martin said Wednesday.

The announcement follows a statement in Ottawa by Health Minister Waldo Monteith releasing Sabin at the discretion of the provinces.

Sabin vaccine programs were halted in September after reports from Ontario that people who had taken Sabin caught polio.

B.C. had been about to embark on an extensive immunization program on Vancouver Island and the lower mainland starting October 15.

This was suspended indefinitely pending a federal investigation.

Sabin vaccine is taken orally in a paper cup. It had already been used in the north and interior last spring.

It replaced the Salk vaccine which was injected into the bloodstream.

It costs about $70,000,000 annually to operate all the fire departments in Canada.

DENIAL that he and former business associates made huge profit by selling land to the University of Waterloo has been made by Ontario Liberal leader John Wintermeyer. He was commenting on a Kitchener-Waterloo labor council report that Major Holdings Ltd. bought 390 acres of land in 1957 for $283,029 and sold 176 acres of it to the university a year later for $355,240. Wintermeyer, who was a company director at the time, said: "I never made a dime."

Resignation Demanded

BONN (AP)—The minority member of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's government coalition threatened today to join the opposition Socialists in demanding the resignation of Defence Minister Franz-Josef Strauss over the Spiegel affair.

The climax of the campaign was the confrontation of Mr. Lesage and Mr. Johnson on television. While this was a fascinating spectacle and may have stimulated a heavy vote, it seems doubtful from the post-election comments of both sides that it was a decisive influence on public opinion.

What is certain is that the election has greatly enhanced the national stature of Mr. Jean Lesage. There has been talk for some time that he will eventually return to federal politics.

This is probably premature. He has now emerged, however, as the outstanding leader of French Canada; the only person on either side of politics in whom one can discern a future Lapointe or St. Laurent.

Two Notable Victories

QUEBEC HAS GIVEN MR. LESAGE HAS GIVEN MR. LESAGE and the Liberals he led back into power two years ago a striking vote of confidence. The electors have declared their faith in the integrity of his government. They have soundly endorsed the Lesage plan for public ownership and operation of electric power, with equitable terms and the right of appeal for former owners.

Beyond this, they have registered their approval of the Liberal Party in a way, as Mr. Pearson says, to "give heart and courage to our federal candidates in the forthcoming election."

The government's 11-seat gain from the Union Nationale—matched by a mounting popular vote which gave the Liberals 56 per cent of the ballots marked—assumes particular significance on the national scene at this time.

Social Credit did not openly contest the provincial election. The fact cannot be ignored, however, that the Union Nationale, patterning its campaign specifically to woo the half million Quebec voters who went Social Credit in the last federal election, failed decisively in their efforts.

Liberals won even in those districts which gave smashing victories to Mr. Real Caouette and his followers last June.

There are obvious dangers, of course, in assuming that voters who marked their ballots for one party in a provincial contest will endorse the same party in a federal election. At the same time, the polls yesterday indicate a continued resurgence of Liberal strength in those areas where Mr. Caouette made spectacular gains five months ago.

The obvious divisions in the national Social Credit party, the devices used by the Ottawa group to keep the Conservative government in power, cannot have gone unnoticed by the folk back home. Some of them, in fact, have already informed their Creditistes members in Ottawa of their disapproval.

Mr. Lesage's "sparkling victory" gives him a decisive mandate to carry out an ambitious and costly program to bring Quebec up-to-date in social, educational and industrial fields. That is a formidable task, as the premier knows, but it had the support of English and French-speaking voters alike.

Notable in the results yesterday was the personal defeat of Marcel Chaput, leader of the revived separatist movement in Quebec. His banner was trampled by the voters, as was that of the newborn L'Action Province, a party formed specifically to oppose the Lesage public power plan. Candidates in that group were so thoroughly rejected, they lost their deposits.

Far distant from the Quebec scene, and untouched by the issues of the ancient province, another important political test was conducted in Prince Albert. There, in the district represented federally by Prime Minister Diefenbaker, voters elected Liberal D. G. Steuart in the first Saskatchewan provincial by-election since the medicare controversy earlier this year, taking a seat held by the CCF for the last eighteen years.

Here again the issue was important beyond provincial boundaries. To Mr. Pearson and the Liberal Party in Ottawa, Wednesday's election news appears to have been all good.

students and faculty can know one another, where both young men and young women can grow up together, and where their social life as well as academic interests are influenced by a common residential setting, is especially well designed to produce members of society distinguished for both their intellect and their character."

This opinion reflects in many particulars the attitude applied in earlier years to Victoria College.

The virtues implicit in an institution small enough to have reasonably close contact between professors and students have long been recognized here.

As Victoria College grows, as it attains full university status and attracts young people from other parts of the province, it will doubtless be the effort of the faculty to retain as many as possible of the virtues inherent in the small college. The Nason creed will not be ignored.

Cases are innumerable in which teen-age hoodlums glory in a self-proclaimed "big shotism" when they are disciplined by their elders. When they are rated as punks by members of their own age-group, it becomes a little more difficult to be smart alecks.

In such instances, judgment by the peers is apparently effective as a deterrent.

'He Is Already Manoeuvring to Face the Chinese on the Question of India'

By Edward Crankshaw, From London

THERE is no rest for Mr. Khrushchev. He has just passed through a crisis of a shattering kind in the Cuban affair. He has been able to present the outcome of a fearful miscalculation as a victory for Soviet might and statesmanship—which, indeed, in a sense it was: President Kennedy has promised not to invade Cuba and Moscow still has a bridgehead in the Western Hemisphere. He has established a new and cool position vis-à-vis the West by enunciating the principle that summit meetings should be reserved for matters of war and peace.

Through Mr. Khrushchev, through the macabre figure of the aged and discredited Marshal Voroshilov a week earlier, he has re-established his personal line in defiance of the hotheads in Peking. At any rate, the Chinese started fighting back.

They refused to join with the Soviet Union in the development of a Communist Common Market. On the occasion of President Brezhnev's visit to Yugoslavia they excelled themselves in abuse of Mr. Khrushchev and his Stalinists old and new.

He ought to be able to take things easy for a little. But he cannot do this. To many in the Soviet Union, to many more in the satellites, to all the effective leaders of China, he is the man who flinched from a head-on collision with America. None of his opponents in the Soviet Union is now in a position to throw this in his teeth (but it could be used against him if his grip for a moment weakens).

In China it is quite another matter, and there are enough sympathizers with the Chinese in foreign Communist parties to make it a serious matter.

After the 22nd Party Congress in October last year, when it looked as though the Sino-Russian quarrel was moving to an open breach, Mr. Khrushchev managed to mobilize world Communist opinion against Peking while the moderates in China, shrinking from the catastrophic consequences of a formal divorce, managed to restrain their colleagues who were determined to bring the quarrel to a head.

Mr. Khrushchev secured a breathing space; but, to all appearances, he used that interval not to heal old wounds but to press his advantage, rather recklessly—rubbing in the humiliation of the Chinese in a number of ways: above all by his offer of jet fighters to India, his demonstrative wooing of Marshal Tito, and his encouragement of the anti-Stalinist mood in certain of his satellites.

Towards the end of the summer something happened (it may have been a hidden diplomatic incident); it may have been a further proof of Soviet subversion in China) to strengthen the hands of the anti-Khrushchev extremists in Peking. At any rate, the Chinese started fighting back.

... REPORTING

OTTAWA — Four Eskimos who dog-sledded into Yellowknife last winter to trade fox skins for supplies were brimming with curiosity about what the crazy white men were doing up at Contwoyo Lake.

They had sledged past this barren coast, and they had seen many stakes protruding from the snow, glowing in the moonlight with luminous orange and yellow paint.

They had mulled over these stakes for many sleeps on the trail to Yellowknife. "The white man is teetuk," said Henry Algoona with a finality that seemed to settle the matter. "But he's teetuk like a fox," he added.

Abraham Kikpak, John Otoajok and James Kaolaoak nodded reflective agreement. Yet soon after they arrived in Yellowknife they sought out the government welfare officer to satisfy their curiosity.

In mining parlance Contwoyo Lake is "hot." During the summer of 1961 a Canadian Nickel Co. drilling crew drove into a substantial body of fair to good gold ore near the shore of the lake. All last winter prospectors flew into the lake area and staked blindly in the snow.

As Henry Algoona and his friends heard the news they marveled. But it did not occur to them to do anything about it until the government man suggested that on their way home they should stake some claims. A good claim, said, could be worth many hundreds, even thousands, of fox skins—and a good fox pelt will bring $20.

That, in short, is how four Eskimo trappers came to stop by the radio beacon station at Contwoyo Lake, and to form a claim-staking partnership with the Pacific Western Airlines radio operators there. Then the mixed group set out on a trip along the lake in 45 degrees below zero weather. Several of the trail-worn dogs died before they got back to the radio station. Nevertheless, they made two more trips to stake a total of 90 claims of 51.65 acres each.

Blind staking in snow is a chancy business—but when summer stripped the land bare the claims of the Eskimos and radio men were found to be as promising as any in the area. Representatives of several companies searched for the claim owners, but it was an official of Giant Yellowknife Mines Ltd. who reached them first. He negotiated an option for his company to buy a 90 per cent interest in their claims for $50,000, with final payment of $5,000 by Sept. 30.

In truth, said Abraham Kikpak, as he counted $100 bills in his summer tent near Coppermine, the white man is teetuk.

Giant Yellowknife crews carried out preliminary work on the claims this past summer. It won't be until next year, when they start diamond drilling, that Giant will get any accurate picture of what is under its costly Contwoyo real estate. By then Henry, Abraham, John and James will be counting more $100 bills.

If drilling results are favorable the company will continue development and payments to the owners until $50,000 has been paid. If mining operations prove profitable, the claim owners: 10 per cent should be worth much more than $50,000.

If the drilling results are negative Giant will drop its option. But even in that event four Stone Age Canadians will still be a good many hundred dollars richer—and tax-free dollars at that.

The Cry of the Lame Duck

WASHINGTON (UPI)—This is the time when the mournful cry of the lame duck is heard again in the land. From the mountains to the prairies and from sea to shining sea you can hear the ghastly gurgle of political careers going down the drain.

As is my custom after an election, I have been spending some time in the library looking for words of comfort and solace that might balm the tattered spirits of the defeated candidates.

It is rather amazing how much literature handed down through the ages appears to refer to the plight of the also-rans.

For instance, I feel certain that Geoffrey Chaucer must have had them in mind in Canterbury Tales when he wrote "Min be the travaille, and thin be the glorie."

It was William Shakespeare, however, who left the largest legacy of lost election lines. By fitting together some quotations from his plays, I was able to compose a short soliloquy which I hereby dedicate to all candidates who came out on the short end of the vote counting:

"Every one can master a grief but he that has it. Those that wring under the load of sorrow (were) done to death by slanderous tongues. I have seen the day of wrong, the true beginning of our end.

"If this (the election) were played upon a stage now, I could condemn it as an improbable fiction. Flat burglary as ever was committed! The rankest compound of villainous smell that ever offended nostril.

"Some rise by sin, and some by virtue fall. He (my opponent) is an enemy to mankind. A snapper-up of unconsidered trifles. Foolery, sir, does walk about the orb like the sun; it shines everywhere.

"It were an easy leap to pluck this bright honor (but) disease nature oftentimes breaks forth in strange eruptions. This sickness doth infect the very life-blood of our enterprise.

"Call you that backing of your friends? A plague upon such backing!

"O, how full of briers is this working-day world. My ventures are not in one bottom trusted. My pride fell with my fortunes. You take my life when you do take the means, whereby I live.

"Sweep on, you fat and greasy citizens! It goes much against my stomach. Sounds! I was never so bothump'd with words. How bitter a thing it is to look into happiness through another man's eyes.

"That ends this strange eventful history. Mere oblivion. Sans everything."

Look It Up—It's in the Book

Young Canada's Book Week commencing today serves to remind us oldsters and near-oldsters that the world of books is no farther away than our nearest public library, or the bookmobile.

For those of us who, for one reason or another, have not accumulated an extensive library of our own, these public library facilities have a value beyond estimation.

In the pursuit of gardening we may need information on a number of allied subjects as far apart as meteorology and the building of a rock wall.

With the longer evenings comes the opportunity to explore some aspect of the gardening hobby, not previously studied. Or, when some particular group of plants have hitherto been mildly interesting, this will be the chance to read all that has been written on the subject by many different writers.

I will guarantee that whether you choose azaleas as the first subject to study, or primulas, or even the lowly violet, your interest will be stimulated to the point where more books on the same subject will be desired in order to increase the newly found stock of information.

Whether you grow the plants or not is actually beside the point, you will have had the enjoyment of exploring without even hefting one handful of soil or enduring one drop of rain down the back of the neck.

On the other hand, if you are thinking of developing a new garden along unique and original lines, ideas for plans will be provoked by delving into several books.

When it comes to reading, we can all be Young Canadians, young in heart and spirit even though bent with years of gardening.

BOYCOTT THREATENED

Trade Meet Delay Urged

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Thirty-four co-sponsors of a resolution for an international trade and development conference insisted Wednesday that the meeting take place as early as September, 1963, despite a boycott threat by the United States and some other Western countries, not including Canada.

Senator F. M. Blois, Canadian delegate to the committee, said he is hopeful something can be worked out. Canada generally favored the idea of the conference but felt the proposed date was too early as much had to be done in preparation.

'Include All of Us In Any TV Debates'

OTTAWA (CP)—The leaders of the Social Credit and New Democratic parties want such a proposal as a debate held between the leaders of the older parties in the next federal election campaign.

Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson and New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas endorsed the general idea of TV debates but took strong exception to a letter written to CBC President J. Alphonse Quimby by Senator John J. Connolly, president of the National Liberal Federation.

In his letter, made public Wednesday, Senator Connolly urged the publicly-owned CBC to provide for a debate between Liberal Leader Pearson and Prime Minister Diefenbaker in his television and radio planning for the next election.

A senior Conservative party official said negotiations have been under way for two years on such a proposal, but the Conservatives would agree if an acceptable formula for such a debate could be found. Chances of this are considered unlikely.

Mr. Thompson and Mr. Douglas criticized the older parties for leaving them out in the cold.

SHOWS NARROW VIEW

Mr. Thompson said in an interview: "The very fact that Senator Connolly would write as he did indicates his narrow political perspective, which I deplore."

"I'd be happy to go along on a four-way discussion. I think that ought to be done. I think the people have a right to be able to judge leaders in this way. There are, perhaps, many pitfalls for some leaders, but that is the test of what leadership is made of."

Mr. Douglas told a reporter that he takes strong exception to Senator Connolly's letter. Even though the New Democratic Party was fourth in electoral strength in the Commons now, it was a national party deserving of equal recognition.

Senator Connolly said in his letter to the CBC that discussions on the form and distribution of free-time political broadcasts during the next election campaign should proceed now, "especially in the present uncertain political situation."

He said the debate between Premier Lesage of Quebec and Union Nationale Leader Daniel Johnson last Sunday "aroused great interest."

Mr. Diefenbaker's view is that the only place for such debates on national political issues is the House of Commons.

The informants said Thant had worked with the United States in developing the idea of stopping the export of essential chemicals to Katanga if that should be necessary to end the secession.

They suggested George C. McGhee, U.S. undersecretary of state for political affairs, was promoting the idea of his current trip to Europe.

Thant's plan of reconciliation outlined Aug. 20 calls for Tshombe to return Katanga to the Congo under a federal constitution, to share Katanga's mineral revenues equally with The Congo and to merge his gendarmerie into the Congolese army. It calls for Adoula to grant amnesty to political prisoners.

While he promoted the plan, diplomatic sources said Thant is also seeking to build up the air power of the UN Congo in the Congo. They said he had asked Sweden to expand its four-plane jet fighter unit there and had asked the Philippines to contribute at least six jet fighters.

'Normal Rise' In Jobless

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment in Canada, rising with the approach of winter, increased by 23,000 from mid-September to total 283,000 in mid-October, a joint report by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the labour department said today.

The rise in jobless numbers, due to a sharp drop in farm jobs, left the October unemployment figure 35,000 less than a year earlier.

The unemployment rate increased to 4.3 per cent of the labor force, compared with 3.9 per cent a month earlier and 4.9 per cent in October, 1961.

The number of Canadians with jobs dwindled by 59,000 in the month to 6,326,000 in mid-October, up 106,000 from a year earlier. The effect on jobless totals of the month's drop in employment was diminished by a reduction of 36,000 in the total labor force.

The increase in unemployment and the decline in numbers with jobs were described by the report as normal seasonal changes for this time of year.

Hoboes Die In Wreck

ANTHONY, N.M. (AP) — A Southern Pacific freight train was derailed in the southern New Mexico desert Wednesday, killing two hoboes and injuring nine others. Railroad officials said eight smashed cars might contain other victims. About 30 cars left the track.

FIVE-DAY CHRISTMAS HOLIDAY

B.C. civil servants will get a five-day break at Christmas-time this year.

They will also get four days off for New Year's.

Their bonus this year is two extra holidays, approved by the cabinet Wednesday.

The reason: Christmas and New Year's fall on Tuesdays.

The bonus holidays: Christmas and New Year's Eve.

The civil servants now will be off work from Saturday, Dec. 22, until Thursday, Dec. 27, for Christmas.

They will be off from Saturday, Dec. 29, until Wednesday, Jan. 2, for New Year's.

World Traveller Funeral Today

Funeral services were held in St. Mary's Anglican Church today for Miss Christian Izod Alexander, a well-known resident of Oak Bay, who died in a nursing home Tuesday. She was 96 years old.

Born in Leighlinbridge, County Carlow, Ireland, Miss Alexander had lived at her 1237 St. David Street residence since 1914.

A worldwide traveller, in 1902 she attended the Delhi Durbar, where Edward VII was proclaimed Emperor of India.

She is survived by three nephews living in Great Britain.

Canada exports wheat... Canada imports Lemon Hart Rums

Canadian wheat is accepted as a standard all over the world because no one can match the combination of soil, climate, and experience that produces it. Rum, on the other hand, is not native to Canada. The best rums, like Lemon Hart, are distilled in the benign climate of the Caribbean... then transported to England where they mature quietly in underground caverns where neither the temperature nor the humidity varies more than a degree or two summer or winter, year in year out.

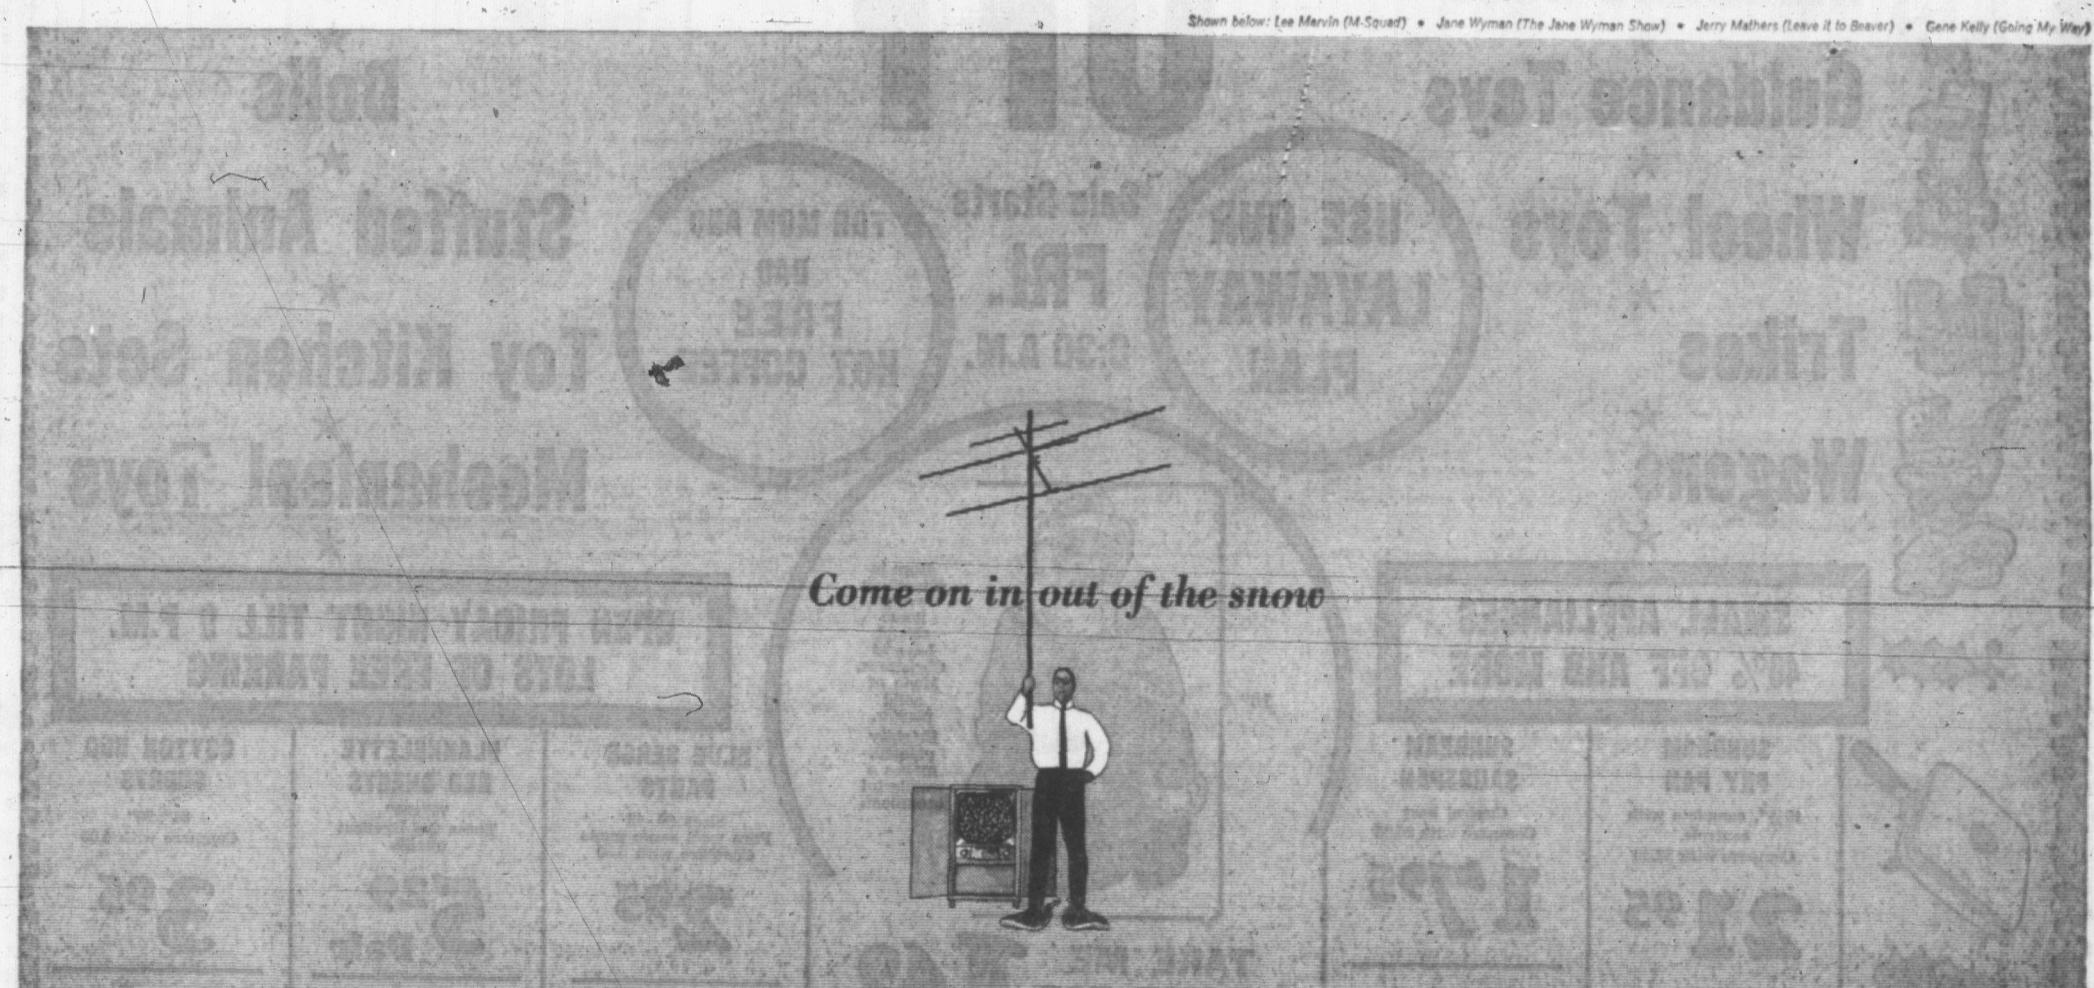

Obviously, a good rum must be imported. And when Lemon Hart Rums reach Canada they are mature, well travelled rums, as distinguished in their way as Canadian wheat — and as well respected throughout the world.

Hamilton Under Attack; Grain Plan 'Ridiculous'

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Leader Pearson fired the opening salvo in the Commons Wednesday of what promises to be a major opposition attack on Agriculture Minister Hamilton and his controversial grain marketing proposals.

Describing the minister's suggestions as "ridiculous," Mr. Pearson said that in making them in a Friday speech to the Saskatchewan wheat pool Mr. Hamilton was guilty either of violating the rule of cabinet solidarity or of perpetrating a hoax on his Regina listeners.

Mr. Hamilton defended his action in broaching the proposals, which were:

1. Farmers consider setting aside a portion of their final wheat payment to build up a fund which would be used to help the federal government meet any losses caused by payment default on export credit sales of grain.

2. The prairie wheat pools and the United Grain Growers consider forming a grain sales organization to enter first the domestic market and later the export market as a real selling agent of the Canadian wheat board.

The opposition leader will continue his speech at a later sitting. Still to come are Social Credit Leader Thompson, who opposes current multi-million-dollar credit sales of wheat to Red China, and New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas who already has described the minister's proposals as a devious means of undermining the scope and function of the wheat board.

GIVES HIS REASONS

Mr. Hamilton, introducing his department's 1962-63 spending estimates, said he made his Regina suggestions "for consideration and discussion by Western Canadian farmers" during the next few months.

"I was doing what I have always done and what I promised the farmers I would do, namely, to discuss with them first all matters affecting them personally before bringing such matters forward for government consideration."

The thesis of his Regina remarks was that there was a great opportunity to sell more Canadian wheat now if everybody pulls together.

The minister described as "false in every respect" Mr. Douglas' contention that he was attempting to undermine the Canadian wheat board.

Mr. Pearson said Mr. Hamilton's Regina text did not bear out the contention of Prime Minister Diefenbaker and the agriculture minister that he had spoken in a personal capacity and not on behalf of the government.

It was "a complete denial of cabinet responsibility, cabinet solidarity, cabinet collectivity, and indeed responsible parliamentary government, to say that (Mr. Hamilton) can make an official visit to the Saskatchewan wheat pool and put forward proposals in his personal individual capacity" about which presumably the cabinet knew nothing at all."

PERPETRATING A HOAX?

If it were true, "then he was certainly perpetrating a hoax on his listeners."

"Either he spoke as minister of agriculture . . . or he had no right to speak at all in the way in which he spoke."

In the last election campaign and up to last Friday Mr. Hamilton had emphasized farmers had nothing to worry about on the current credit sales, bulk of which are to Red China. He had said the government was "going to draw: "The minister must have a very hard time explaining why he should have departed in such a basic way from the doctrine of cabinet responsibility . . . in order to put forward proposals of this kind."

There was only one conclusion to draw: "The minister must be slipping, as indeed the government is slipping."

Flight Engineer Partly To Blame For Ditching

NEW YORK (AP) — A flight engineer who lost his life in the ditching of an airliner in the Atlantic last Sept. 23 caused the loss of one engine by turning a lever by mistake, the pilot testified Wednesday.

The Flying Tiger Airline Constellation lost three of its four engines—one after another—before ditching. The tragedy killed 28 of the 76 persons aboard. Capt. John D. Murray, the pilot, told a Civil Aeronautics Board hearing that he might have been able to limp into Shannon, Ireland, on two engines.

Murray said that the engineer, James E. Garrett Jr., 30, told him he had "goofed" after the first engine caught fire by turning a handle which shut off a valve connected to an engine that was not giving trouble. This engine oversped and had to be shut down, the pilot said.

Murray, who has logged about 70,000 hours in 24 years of flying, described Garrett as "one of the most competent engineers I've flown with."

LANDS IN OCEAN

When a third engine was lost to fire, the decision to ditch was forced and the aircraft put down in rough seas 500 miles off the coast of Ireland.

Surface ships picked up 51 persons from life rafts and the sea, 48 of whom survived. The casualties included five of the eight-member crew.

The Civil Aeronautics Board released two reports by investigators, one of them noting "several deviations from the required entries" in paper work at Gander, Nfld., where the plane stopped for servicing.

The reports asserted that a number of maintenance records concerning certain procedures about the aircraft's weight and balance were either missing or indicated erasures and illegible entries and that records and questioning of personnel indicated the pilot did not get a weather briefing before leaving Gander.

'Drinking Celebration' Criticized

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Two United Church ministers have criticized members of the Royal Canadian Legion for allowing liquor to become part of Remembrance Day observance.

Rev. Ibbs Avery of Knox United Church said in a sermon Remembrance Day has degenerated into "an excuse for a damn good drunk."

"Pagan," said Rev. Newton Steacy of St. Andrew's.

A naval veteran of the Second World War, Mr. Avery said the practice of drinking at Legion halls on Remembrance Day is "a mockery to those who laid down their lives. I do not consider this is keeping faith with those who died."

Dennis McDonald, a past-president of the Legion, said Mr. Avery was missing the whole spirit of the Remembrance Day observances with their overtones of military tradition.

He recalled that army funerals, although they are solemn and dignified occasions, wind up on a joyous note.

CHINA MOTIVE

'Attempt To Disrupt Economy'

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — An Indian diplomat said Wednesday he believed the Chinese Communist invasion of his country is not a war but an attempt by China to disrupt the Indian economy.

Z. L. Kaul, press and information officer of the Indian consulate in New York, told a meeting of Rutgers Newark students, "what the Chinese actually want is that the Indian economy should be disrupted to war."

The Chinese want to change the Indian economy so that the economic strain affects the people so there will be chaos and out of chaos Communism will grow," Kaul said.

The diplomat said India was securing military aid from the Soviet Union as well as the United States and other countries "without strings."

SUPPORT OF PEOPLE GROWS

'When Nehru Leads Victory Is Ours'

BOMBAY (CP) — Jawaharlal Nehru must easily be the world's most overworked statesman. On a single day recently he received 1,400 visitors at his modest house.

They included ambassadors, visiting princess from The Netherlands, senior government officials, politicians from many provinces, groups of college and school boys and girls, rickshaw-pullers, peasant women and inmates of a deaf- and dumb school. In between he addressed two public rallies, conferred with members of the national defence council and spoke to a committee on social welfare.

Newspaper editorials and big advertisements describe Nehru as "the symbol of India's determination to throw out the Chinese aggressors."

"We march with Nehru," says an advertisement sponsored by Indian businessmen. "When Nehru leads victory is ours."

Nehru's mass appeal, never in doubt, is rising sharply. For instance, though donations for national defence can be paid at any of 50 offices opened in the capital, many Indians insist on handing their contributions personally to the prime minister.

GIVES LIFE SAVINGS

An 85-year-old illiterate woman who bakes bread on a Delhi pavement insisted on meeting Nehru. She embraced the prime minister, applied tilak (holy vermillion) on his forehead, and turned over to him 140 rupees ($30) which she described as her life savings.

Tents have been pitched on the green lawns of the prime minister's residence to accommodate the streams of visitors flowing in at all hours of the day. Usually, Nehru likes to see unscheduled callers after breakfast.

When the parties are too large, they squat on the lawns in neat rows, each with a marigold garland in his hands. As the prime minister walks past greeting them the garlands are put around his neck. One day a quickload of flowers was left behind by visitors.

Knowing Nehru's partiality to children, visitors take along their broods of youngsters.

The prime minister's secretary has instructions to show special consideration to foreign visitors. With the tourist season in full swing large numbers of Canadians, Americans and Britons passing through New Delhi include a visit to the prime minister in their itinerary.

Fourth Set of Twins

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — The fourth set of twins in as many trips to the hospital was born Monday to Mr. and Mrs. Sherman E. King of nearby Aumsville. The infants are boys. The Kings have a boy and girl, 9; two boys, 5, and a boy and girl, 2½. They had three children before the first twins arrived.

Hal Malone LOOKS AT SPORTS

In New Westminster they call Harry McKnight "Father Divine." Listening to Mr. McKnight at the Intercity Lacrosse League's annual fish-fry last week one could understand how he acquired the handle.

Both are evangelists of a sort. Both have good lungs. Both have an index-finger three feet long which they use to emphasize their gospel of the moment.

After that the comparison gets thin, like yesterday's soup warmed over. The real Father Divine is a kind of Daddy Warbucks of the preaching set ("faith is wonderful but I like to hear the sound of those bills in the collection can") who wants to save everybody's soul from sundry types of sin.

Mr. McKnight doesn't impress as a fellow who has anything against sin. His real purpose in life is to take the game of lacrosse and put it up there somewhere between National League football and Major League baseball.

Somnambulant Senate Irks Harry

As general manager of the New Westminster team, Mr. McKnight has had some success. The Royal City beak-busters have snatched the Mann Cup, symbolic of boxla might, three years in the last five.

This is heady stuff in B.C. and Ontario where lacrosse is played. In Canada's other eight provinces, the natives think LaCrosse is a town in Wisconsin.

It seemed, then, a little incongruous to hear McKnight proclaim that lacrosse could be "BIG" (Mr. McKnight shouts when making an after-dinner address) in such outposts as England and the United States.

All the game needs to take hold elsewhere, he said, "is some sound promotion."

Though not overburdened with modesty, Mr. McKnight stopped short of recommending Harry McKnight as the boy to do the job. Let it be said, he said, that the task of promoting lacrosse is not being worked to death in Canada by the Canadian Lacrosse Association.

He likened the CLA to "the Senate"—where old soldiers collect to compare snores and indulge in other important undertakings.

His colleagues winced as McKnight rolled on, applying tar and feathers liberally to CLA hides. Significantly none were moved to stand up and spear him through the epiglottis with a fork. They knew he had a point.

VP Teddy Makes a Lovely Target

They cringe whenever the name Edward "Ted" Blair, is mentioned. Mr. Blair is the CLA's first vice-president in charge of setting lacrosse back to the Neanderthal age.

In any game of pin the tail on the donkey, Mr. Blair would not be the pin. His portfolio of nonsense includes deep bias (primarily for the east—he comes from Streetsville, Ont); shallow thinking (example: berating game officials in public); and, a compulsion to tell anybody who doesn't agree with him to jump off, a tall pier.

Under the CLA's promotion-through-seniority plan, Blair will be it's next presiding genius, a fact McKnight (and others) await with horror.

Other problems keep lacrosse from spreading its wings. William Ellison, retiring after five years as president of the Vancouver team, cited them.

"Lacrosse," said Mr. Ellison with refreshing candor, "has been called 'bush' and it was 'bush.' It has improved... and it can stand improvement. I hope, in stepping down, that new blood will never let the game slip again."

Mr. Thomas Gordon, the Intercity League secretary, nearly choked when McKnight and Ellison flapped their guns. A man of low tolerance to criticism of Canada's national game, Mr. Gordon politely said he thought McKnight was full of hogwash. Why boxla, said Mr. Gordon, is constantly considering innovations such as bigger goals and important things like that.

He Would Be Ooh La La In Quebec

He didn't say anything about lacrosse's peculiar fetish for aligning itself with liquor interests.

Last year three teams, Vancouver, New Westminster and Nanaimo were walking billboards for assorted breweries. Somehow old names like Salmonbellies, Adanacs, Bluebirds and Timbermen tickle the palate more than Carlings or Luckies or O'Keeses.

Elimination of centre face-offs after every goal would be another improvement. Continual play stoppages are a contradiction to lacrosse's claim as being "the fastest game on two feet."

Perhaps what lacrosse needs most is a Harry McKnight in the pilot house. He may not always be right but he is rarely dull.

Any man who can stretch "just a few words" into a speech covering 28 minutes, six seconds, without refuelling, is just apt to be heard in England or the U.S. Who knows? With a quick translator at his side, he might even get lacrosse into Quebec. They go for a Real talker there.

With the victory went third place in the National Hockey League for the Leafs, who now are two points ahead of the Canadiens. They have 17 points, one behind the second-place Chicago Black Hawks who defeated the first-place Detroit Red Wings 4-2 Wednesday night. The fifth-place New York Rangers licked the last-place Boston Bruins 6-2 in the other NHL game of the night.

All last season—and for much of the previous part of his seven-year professional hockey career—Harris was kept around as a space man. Imlach, Toronto manager-coach, didn't heed the reaction of the fans who applauded Harris almost every time he appeared on the ice.

For the few games, Imlach has put Harris between wingers Bobby Pulford and Ron Stewart, and now the six-foot centre is tied with centre Dave Keon for most points by a Leaf this season. Both have 13.

"He will keep the job as long as the line is producing like this," Imlach said after Wednesday night's game.

Punch Might Get To Like That Boy

Harris Clinches Leafs' Victory; Wings Toppled

By Canadian Press

Billy Harris, the idol of many a Toronto Maple Leaf fan, is working his way into Punch Imlach's heart. He showed why again Wednesday night.

The stage was set. Toronto led 3-2. Montreal Canadiens had control of the puck in the Leaf zone. Jacques Plante was halfway from the Canadiens' net to the bench to be replaced by an extra forward.

Then Harris entered the picture. Plante scooted back to his net, but he might as well have not bothered.

The lanky, stick-handling centre culminated his rush up the boards by neatly outfoxing the Montreal netminder to score and give Toronto a 4-2 victory.

TAKE THIRD PLACE

With the victory went third place in the National Hockey League for the Leafs, who now are two points ahead of the Canadiens. They have 17 points, one behind the second-place Chicago Black Hawks who defeated the first-place Detroit Red Wings 4-2 Wednesday night.

The fifth-place New York Rangers licked the last-place Boston Bruins 6-2 in the other NHL game of the night.

ALSO SCORE

Pulford, Keon and right-winger George Armstrong scored the other Toronto goals. Centre Henri Richard, on a 75-foot shot that fooled Toronto goaltender Johnny Bower on the bounce, and right-winger Bernie Geoffrion were the Montreal real marksmen.

Bower was back after a three-game rest during which Don Simons, now out with the flu, took over. Both he and Plante who strained a leg muscle in his last game and had to be replaced, played a competent game.

At Chicago, Hawk left-winger Bobby Hull proved that his goal-scoring slump couldn't last too long. He scored two goals as the Hawks handed Detroit its second loss of the season. Before Wednesday night Hull, who last season became the third man in NHL history to score 50 goals in a season, had only tallied twice.

COUNT FIVE IN SECOND

New York scored five goals in the second period to send the Bruins home with their seventh loss of the season. The line of Earl Ingarfield, Andy Bathgate and Bernie Geoffrion accounted for half the Ranger scoring. Each had a goal and Ingarfield added two assists.

Doug Harvey, Dave Balon and Camille Henry scored the other New York goals and Don McKenney and Wayne Hicks replied for Boston.

Bobby Pulford, the goaltender who let New York's five second-period goals go by, was replaced in the third period by Ed Johnson. He has been in action only a minute and 33 seconds when Ingarfield scored.

THREE INDUSTRIES

Minimum Wage Boost Passed

A boost in minimum wages for three big classes of B.C. industry was announced Wednesday by the provincial Industrial Relations Board.

A board spokesman said the new minimum for the manufacturing, mercantile and hotel industries will be $1 an hour.

Thalidomide Care Costs To Be Shared

B.C. and Federal governments have agreed to share costs of any special care for thalidomide babies, but details of the plan haven't been worked out, Deputy Health Minister Dr. J. A. Taylor said Wednesday.

He said further meetings are planned to discuss the problem.

"The sharing of costs is all worked out with Ottawa, but how far it will be carried and in what direction are still being considered."

Dr. Taylor said there have now been nine known cases of deformed babies because their mothers took the drug thalidomide during pregnancy.

Until the Ottawa negotiations are complete the province is not providing any special assistance, he said.

"Anyone affected will receive the normal facilities available in the province for deformed children," he said.

RECOMMENDATIONS

The Industrial Relations Board is also studying other increases in minimum wages for B.C. industry. More recommendations are expected soon.

The B.C. Federation had asked the board for a $1.25 minimum and 40-hour week.

The board spokesman said $1 was chosen "after considering all factors involved including a study of prevailing wages and collective agreements."

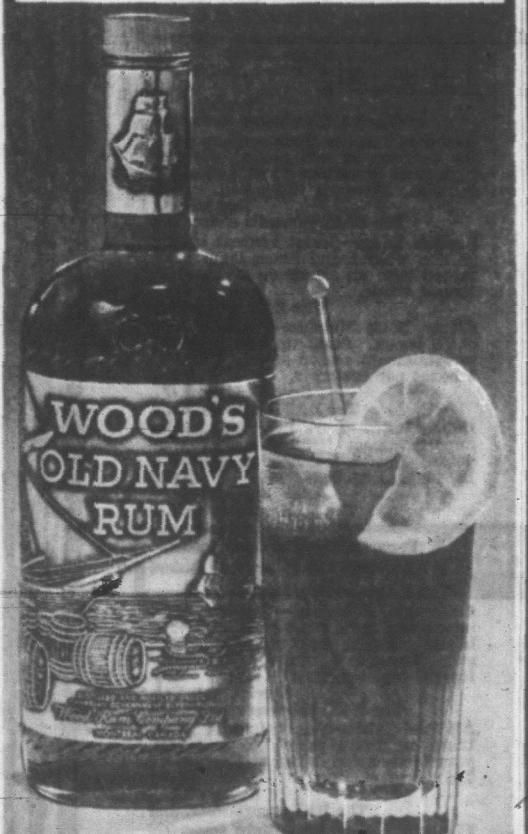

The new wage schedule allows employers to pay less than $1 for a three-month learners' period. Minimum for the first month is 85 cents, for the second month 90 cents and 95 cents for the third.

There will be no differential for women.

$25 Million Loan Assured

29 Firms Agree to Share Long-Term B.C. Financing

Twenty-nine firms have signed an advance agreement to purchase $25,000,000 worth of 20-year-bonds from Premier Bennett in New York next week.

The people who will lend the money come from 21 cities in 15 states.

All but two of the investors are insurance companies. Two companies are Canadian.

Details of the first long-term financing undertaken by B.C. outside the province in more than five years came to announce the details.

5 Per Cent Interest

The money is to be borrowed at an interest rate of 5 per cent.

However, a discount of three cents on the dollar to the lenders will make the effective rate 5 1/4 per cent.

A finance official described it as "a very good rate" for long-term money in the U.S. and considerably better than anything available in Canada.

The formal deal will be signed Nov. 20 when Mr. Bennett and his deputy finance minister G. S. Bryson are in New York "laying the ground work" for financing the Peace River power project.

Legal Status of Agency

The lenders will receive a certificate showing no adverse changes in Toll Authority finances since the end of the last fiscal year, March 31, and certificates from Attorney-General Robert Bonner about the legal status of the Crown agency.

The only long-term borrowing in the past five years was earlier this year—$25,000,000 worth of 5 1/4 per cent bonds for B.C. Hydro, which were marketed locally.

Nearly all the Toll Authority loan is to repay existing notes which fall due between now and next April. But $1,500,000 of it is for capital spending—probably to help pay for new government ferries being built.

The new loan will carry the usual provincial guarantees which is what the cabinet approved Wednesday.

It is being made in the form of debentures of from $1,000, $25,000 and $100,000 value.

The biggest lender is the Travellers Insurance Co. of

Sooke Board Against Teacher Wage Raise

The four per cent salary increase for teachers proposed by Victoria School Board is "a breach of faith with other Island school boards," says John Williams, salary committee chairman of Sooke School Board.

The proposed increase is fantastically high in at least two categories," he declared. "It should be investigated by municipal authorities of Victoria, Esquimalt, Oak Bay and Saanich, whose ratepayers will be saddled with an additional salary bill of $222,000."

The salary offer goes to $8,150 and $8,840 for straight classroom teachers with PB (one university degree) and PA (two university degrees) qualifications.

"This is the highest settlement I know of in the province during current negotiations. It exceeds even the settlements in such isolated centres as Ocean Falls and Kitimat."

Mr. Williams recalled that 12 Island school boards recently agreed to a four per cent increase for their teachers to bring salaries into line with top 1962 salaries paid in Victoria.

Now Victoria turns around and offers increases of as much as $480 a year."

Mr. Williams said the Victoria offer, in the PB and PA categories, is higher than salaries already accepted by the teachers of Saanich, Sooke and nine other Island school districts.

Court Hears Boundary Dispute

A boundary dispute over 300 acres of property near Satellite Channel, about 28 miles north of Victoria, is being heard in B.C. Supreme Court here today.

Mr. and Mrs. Wray Granfield claim that the Cowichan Copper Co. Ltd., which holds adjacent property, has encroached on their land because the boundary line between the properties is "false."

They also claim that Cowichan Copper caused damage to their property by building a road below the "true" boundary line.

William R. McIntyre is appearing for Mr. and Mrs. Granfield. Robert Price is counsel for Cowichan Copper Ltd.

The hearing continues this afternoon.

MRS. FDR's WORK GOES ON

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy Wednesday named a committee headed by Ambassador Adlai Stevenson to find ways to carry on the work of the late Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Appointed at the request of Mrs. Roosevelt's family, the committee will recommend ways in which the major interests of Mrs. Roosevelt—mainly the protection of human rights and improvement of living conditions for the underprivileged—can be continued.

Duncan Field Day

DUNCAN—Cowichan dairy farmers attended a field day Wednesday at the Thunderbird Farm, old Sohomeno Road.

The object of the field day was to give a practical demonstration in the hope of creating a higher standard of quality milk, a higher level of consumed milk and increase in the monetary value of milk produced, Ken R. Jameson, local agriculture superintendent stated.

Tennis Club Dinner

DUNCAN—Completing its 75th anniversary year and to mark a successful season, the South Cowichan Lawn Tennis Club is planning a dinner Friday at the Commercial Hotel dining room. An open forum on plans for 1963 will wind up a varied program of reports, followed by elections.

District 62 To Inspect Bookmobile

SOOKE—Vancouver Island regional library bookmobile will be opened for public inspection at the Sooke Shopping Centre Saturday and at the Colwood Plaza Saturday. It will also be on display on Nov. 23 and 24 at the same places.

The bookmobile is being put on display to show residents of school district 62 one of the services provided by the regional library.

Residents expect to vote on a referendum asking them if they are in favor of joining the library.

In conjunction with referendum, Frank White, regional librarian, will address a PTA meeting at Langford Elementary School on Monday, Nov. 19, starting at 8 p.m.

Schools Ease Regulation On Dentists

Routine dental appointments for students in Greater Victoria high schools may now be made within school hours, but not before 2:30 p.m., the school board announced Wednesday.

The board recently revised its policy of allowing no appointments in school hours for students in Grades 8 to 12.

City dentists had asked that appointments be made any time after 1 p.m.

"We could not agree to this," a board spokesman said, "but we have gone part-way to assisting the dentists. We still feel that parents whenever possible should make dental appointments for their children out of school hours."

The board was told that dentists can fit in more than 30,000 dental appointments a year without encroaching on any classes.

Students in Grades 1 to 7 and kindergarten have permission to go directly from home to dental appointments scheduled for 9 or 9:30 a.m.

"Emergency and orthodontia treatment may be made at any time for all grades," the school board spokesman said.

They said the deadlock has forced postponement of the referendum until 1963.

"It is not settled within the next few months, it will aggravate the district's school accommodation program," said Mrs. Isabelle Reader, school board publicity chairman.

"We felt we had justification for what we put in. This was for absolute minimal requirements and we did not pad it in any way."

The board asked for a 15-acre school site in Metchosin and additions to Milnes Landing secondary, Colwood, Glen Lake, Happy Valley, Metchosin, Millstream, Sangster, Saanich, Sooke and Sooke elementary schools.

Mrs. Hilda Prior, Pender Island, school trustee for eight years, has also resigned due to illness. G. S. Humphreys, chairman of the board, has stated that he will not seek re-election.

School Trustee For Nine Years To Resign

GANGES—A. D. Dane, Gulf Islands school trustee for South Salt Spring (Fulford) for nine years, has tendered his resignation, effective Dec. 31. Mr. Dane served part of his term as chairman of the board.

Mrs. Hilda Prior, Pender Island, school trustee for eight years, has also resigned due to illness. G. S. Humphreys, chairman of the board, has stated that he will not seek re-election.

ARTHUR MAYSE

As all who know me can testify, I prefer to seek shelter when the big winds of controversy blow. But one point raised by our Victoria College students as they paddle around their leaky new campus, I can't let pass unchallenged.

This is a false premise based on a piece of inductive thinking. It runs, roughly, thus:

"Men fight wars. At 18, I am considered old enough to wear my country's uniform in war. Ergo, I am a man, and the law lags when it denies me a man's right to buy and drink liquor."

The false premise is that when the army gets aghast of you, it will consider you a man. Once in—once issued a number and a uniform—you become in the eyes of the military as but a little child.

The army is your father and your mother, and while it expects you to think for yourself if no one's around to give orders, in general you do exactly what you're told.

And—sorry, young gentlemen—one thing the army tells its children in no uncertain terms is to keep out of the wet canteen until or unless they're 21.

I'm not convinced of this, but it seems to me if drinking age is to be lowered, the young male should be allowed to patronize Col. McGuigan's emporiums when he's judged mature enough to help muddle the affairs of his province by voting. In British Columbia, that comes at 19.

This change, I wouldn't fight. I was trifling with hard liquor at that age, and so, too, whether they care to admit it or not, were a good many of your fathers and mothers.

I would, however, point out that with rights and privileges goes responsibility. If you propose to run with the wolves, more is entailed than howling with them.

In simplest terms, if you drink, don't leave a mess behind you. Watch where you drop the empties. And if drinking lands you in any of the numerous "jackpots" that can stem from a bent elbow, follow through on this involved and difficult business of being a man by standing up to the consequences.

Let me warn you also that legalized drinking won't be anything like as much fun as pointing up youth's rebellion against things as they are with a few shots from an unsanctioned bottle. Take away the tang of the illicit and you may find you haven't much left but a hangover.

Personally, I've never subscribed to the belief that our young are hell-bound, and every now and then something happens to confirm my optimism.

A couple of weeks ago, I, or rather my car, chose to run out of gas 30 feet from the college parking lot that opens on Foul Bay Road. The next car out eased to the curb.

I asked the student driver if he'd mind dropping me at a service station.

"You might have to walk back," he said. "I'll go down and get you some gas."

This he did, driving out of his way to help a stranger.

His name, which I'm going to embarrass him by printing, is Al Murray, he lives at 476 Davida, and I hope he wins several fat scholarships.

If this fails, the 23 health and welfare agencies participating in the drive will be forced to limit their services next year.

How to Save Your Precious Time, Space and Pennies

By Penny Saver

Penny-saver, time-saver, space-saver, in fact anything that saves anything is Penny's forte. Today it is a mixture of space, time and pennies.

First of all is a space-saver for the oven, a spot where space may make the difference between dessert and no dessert. This 59-cent gadget is a narrow metal rack with eight upright prongs made specifically for baking potatoes or apples.

This could also eliminate nasty burns, or have you never burned your forearm as you reached into a hot oven to rescue the potato from the back corner.

Secondly is a time-saver. This can be either of two varieties of oven liners. One is a heavy duty aluminum tray with rolled edges, 15 inches by 18 inches. The tray fits under the bottom element of your oven and catches all the greasy drips. The price is 75 cents and it can be cleaned more readily than the oven and re-used.

The other variety is a metal disc with a hole in the centre which allows an even distribution of heat for perfect baking. It is designed to catch the drips from pies or casseroles and can also be used for baking coffee rolls or cookies. The price, 75 cents.

Thirdly, pennies and vitamins can be saved by investing in a surface cooker. This consists of two perforated metal discs attached to a wooden handle. Place the surface cooker over the element and it converts conducted heat into convected heat. It maintains a uniform temperature at all points of the cooking utensil.

Vegetables can be cooked in less water, thus retaining more minerals and vitamins. It eliminates the need for a double-boiler as the even heat prevents sticking.

The surface cooker also acts as an oven for baking potatoes and puddings by inverting a lid over the potatoes placed on the cooker. This investment amounts to $2.19.

Junior Gourmets Dig Hot Doggities

It doesn't take a national survey to convince parents that just about every youngster loves frankfurters. But teens and pre-teens are like their parents—when it comes to parties, they go for refreshments that have a festive look.

Next time you're entertaining the younger set, try a new trick with frankfurters called Hot Doggities. They are party fare frankfurters skewered, rolled in catsup and cornflake crumbs, then baked.

Combine several of these crisply crusted franks on a plate with potato chips and pickles, and you'll have an elegant party meal that requires no knives or forks to eat.

For adult parties, miniature versions of Hot Doggities make delicious hot hors d'oeuvres. To make them, use tiny cocktail frankfurters, substitute tooth picks for skewers and shorten baking time to 10 minutes.

HOT DOGGITIES

Two cups corn flakes or 1/2 cup packaged cornflake crumbs, 10 4 1/2-inch wooden skewers, 10 frankfurters (about 1 lb.), 1/2 cup catsup.

If using corn flakes, crush into fine crumbs. Insert skewers lengthwise into frankfurters, leaving about two inches for a handle. Score surface of frankfurters lightly, spiraling from end to end. Roll frankfurters in catsup, then coat generously with cornflake crumbs. Place in a lined shallow baking pan. Do not crowd. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) about 15 minutes. Serve with additional catsup and mustard, if desired. Yield: Four to five servings.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Creative Outlet Important For Emotional Happiness

I received a very interesting letter the other day. My reader said, "Could you suggest strains and stresses unless they can bang it out or strum it out or blow it out with some form of music."

I have always envied anyone who could play by ear, and those who can are in great demand. They are always an asset on social occasions. I think this woman should join church groups, and become active in her local YWCA and other such organizations. It might well be that she could use the YW's piano for an hour or so a day in return for playing for exercises classes.

Also, in most communities a small piano can be rented by the month for a small fee. However, I think that this lonely reader should use her ability to play to make friends.

Every human being needs some individual personal outlet, some form of emotional expression and some opportunity for creating something lovely. It doesn't have to be expert. If you enjoy writing poems or songs to express your emotions and thoughts, do so. It will keep you young even if it never reaches a magazine or Broadway.

Revers: Front part of the bodice, coat or jacket, that rolls back to form lapels. This actually is part of the front facing of your garment.

Turn back: To turn the sleeve fit into the armhole, you will have to trim the underarm seam about a half-inch lower, tapering to nothing about halfway to the shoulder. I would check the way your garment hangs at this time, if the wrinkles have disappeared, you may reset the sleeves.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Room for Belief!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Last night, I had a bridge club, my husband went to a drive-in movie. When he came home at 5 o'clock in the morning he said, "Now don't get mad at me. I fell asleep at the drive-in movie and nobody woke me up." Can this be true?

GRAND SLAM

DEAR GRAND: It is ridiculous enough to be true.

DEAR ABBY: I was told not to wear black to a wedding. I went out and bought a new dress, although I had a perfectly good (new) black one in my closet. When I got to the wedding, two out of five women were wearing black dresses. The wedding was at 7 p.m. Please answer in the paper. I want to settle this with the housework. Now that I have a home of my own I am sorry I didn't learn more under my mother's supervision. Do you know how to mop and wash the floors? And how to polish furniture properly? Can you wash and iron your husband's shirts? Do you know how to clean an oven? And defrost a refrigerator? Do you know what to do if a fuse blows? Can you buy groceries in the right amounts? Unless you can answer yes to all these questions, don't complain.

Adjust Armhole Seam To Get Rid of Wrinkles

"Dear Eunice Farmer: One of the mysteries of adjusting a ready-made garment is the diagonal wrinkles that form on the bodice, just in front of the armholes. What can I do about this, it happens on almost all the clothes I buy?"—Mrs. L.R.

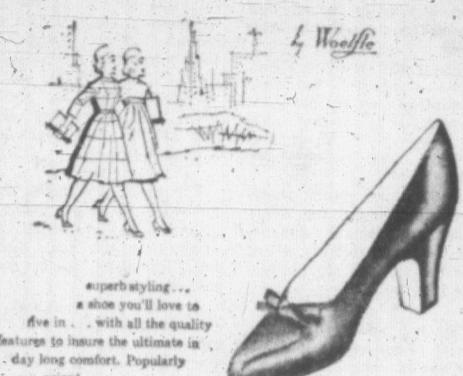

Dear Mrs. L.R.: The diagonal wrinkles you speak of are usually caused by very sloping shoulders. If this is the case with you, rip the sleeves out of your garment. Make a new shoulder seam by taking at least a half-inch additional seam allowance at the armhole and taper to the original seam at the neckline.

To make the sleeve fit into the armhole, you will have to trim the underarm seam about a half-inch lower, tapering to nothing about halfway to the shoulder. I would check the way your garment hangs at this time, if the wrinkles have disappeared, you may reset the sleeves.

IT'S A STORY

London Hit By Bowlers, False Flickers

By PAT DUFOUR

If you're planning a trip to Europe you'd better take along a gaily colored bowler. This advice is given by Mrs. Leslie Mander-Wright, here for a few months from her home in London, England, to visit her sons, Geoffrey and Ian, and their families.

"We've tried for years to get the young women to wear hats and now they've gone mad about bowlers. If you walk along Bond Street, you'll see scores of them perched on top of the wearers' heads and looking as smart as paint."

Another item you'd better take along is a pair of false eye lashes. Dufour

YOUNG AND OLD

"There's no age limit—everyone's wearing them—young and old. In fact, you feel almost naked without them!"

If you find it hard to understand why a grandmother of 14 should be preoccupied with fashion it's easily explained when you learn that Mrs. Mander-Wright has had her finger on the pulse of fashion since 1935, both as a model and commentator.

And, if you're not exactly the willowy type, take heart. The visitor broke into haute couture as a size 18 or "young outside" in European style parlance.

"If I have one pet—it's fat women. I once instigated a survey that involved measuring 2,000 women. As a result, the fashion sales promotion firm which my husband and I run was able to persuade one manufacturer to concentrate on styles for the larger woman."

She chuckles over her debut as a model.

"I wanted to earn some pin money and one of my friends suggested I sign up as a model. I went down for an interview—green as grass—and the next thing I knew I was on the train with another model, headed for Wales and my first show."

FAME CAME EARLY

"When we arrived, I must admit that I was thrown a bit when I saw a poster advertising the show and found myself described as a 'famous London model.'"

Things have changed a great deal since those days, she adds quickly and mentions that her firm now trains models as part of its service.

Mrs. Mander-Wright has been commenting since 1938 and, in this capacity, has met several members of the royal family.

"Princess Margaret often attends our shows and the Queen Mother just adores fashion shows. In contrast, the Queen rarely attends except when it's in the line of duty."

She describes a mammoth show given in aid of the Actors' Orphanage at Roehampton Club, just outside London as "more like a relay race than a show."

"We gave about six or seven half-an-hour shows during the afternoon and evening with the models wearing clothes donated by top designers. Each show was followed by an auction of the styles."

DUCHESS' DILEMMA

"The Duchess of Kent was there, looking as smart as ever. She fell in love with a chiffon gown and negligee. As members of the Royal Family are not allowed to bid at a public auction, a friend of hers bid on them and gave them to her."

If you've had trouble getting your husband to go with you to a show perhaps you would guess for some of the protective clothing shows that are part of the English fashion scene.

"They're very popular and feature things like asbestos, air compression and heat-reflecting suits."

"I remember the show we gave the day Queen Mary died. Prince Philip came in spite of everything and was really enthusiastic about the 'skid lids' that were shown."

In case you're wondering, "skid lids" are helmets worn by motorcyclists. The prince is just as keen on cycling as he is polo or flying.

Although Victoria women have not succumbed in mass to the lure of false eyelashes and frivolous bowlers, this fashion expert feels that they compete pretty favorably with their London counterparts.

"So many of them have glorious figures. They must have a great will power."

From Mainland

Mrs. D. Bain, Mr. and Mrs. C. Freeman, Mr. and Mrs. E. Freeman, Mr. and Mrs. R. McManus and family, Dr. and Mrs. Ray Boak and Miss J. Bain came from Vancouver to attend the wedding of Miss Karen Cronk and Mr. Bruce Borden. Another out-of-town guest was Mrs. Ivy Cameron, Port Angeles, Wash.

House Guest

A former Victorian, Miss Nora Clarke, has been visiting her sister-in-law, Mrs. Florence Clarke and family in their home on Selkirk Avenue. The visitor is the sister of the WO2 Richard W. Clarke.

peau de soie were worn by the bride's maids, the Misses Ulle Prees and Rhodene Cronk, another sister of the bride. Flowered whiskeys were en tone and bronze and gold chrysanthemums decorated the church and pews were marked with white ribbons and carnations.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white lace over satin, made by herself, that featured a scalloped neckline, fully point sleeves and a full, hoop skirt. Three-tiered shoulder-length veil of illusion net misted from a coronet of pearls. For "something old" she had her maternal grandmother's diamond ring. Tallismen roses were in the cascade bouquet.

Matron of honor Mrs. G. McGhee, sister of the bride, chose a gold peau de soie gown, toning flowered whiskeys and accessories and bouquet of bandeaues. Bronze-toned chrysanthemums.

The groom's nieces, Valerie Jollymore and Brenda Borden, were flower girls, in apricot-toned gowns of chrome spun taffeta and matching flowered bandeaues. Bronze-toned chrysanthemums.

As the newlyweds left the church they were greeted by a guard of honor of the Sea Ranger crew, SRS Margaret, of which the bride is a member.

Tom O'Reilly proposed the toast to the bride at a reception in St. Luke's Church parish hall. Decorations repeated church's theme. Miss Janet Chapman sang "Because."

Tiered candles and bronze and gold chrysanthemums flanked the three-tiered wedding cake, which was made by the bride's mother and decorated by her cousin, Mrs. Fred Henderson.

Leaving on a honeymoon trip to the southern States and Mexico, the bride donned a skipper blue cashmere wool suit and hat, made by herself, black accessories and Talisman rose corsage.

Newlyweds will make their home at Brentwood Bay.

Dainty and Matching

One way to feel confident and poised all day is to know that you're not only clean, but pretty, too, from the skin out. No matter how good your figure, you won't derive any satisfaction from a glance in the mirror if it reflects a white bra and a blue slip. If you don't have matching lingerie, start now to buy it, piece by piece.

When you step from your scented bath into sheer hose, and a dainty bra, girdle and slip, all the same shade, you'll feel luxuriously clothed even before you slip into your dress.

Knowing that your underpinnings are pretty can create for you an aura of well-being that will last throughout the entire day.

Mr. Weeks not only got his buck but found this giant edible mushroom to garnish his venison. ### LOCAL BRIEFS

Washington mushroom expert Dr. Margaret McKenney, of Olympia, is unable to address Theta Park Nature Sanctuary Association tonight due to serious injuries she received in an auto crash.

Dr. Kenney had been scheduled to speak to the organization on "Edible Mushrooms," at a meeting in Douglas Building cafeteria, 8 p.m.

She is in hospital, where she was to have had brain surgery, a sanctuary spokesman said.

An alternative program on fungi will be presented, including a display of freshly collected specimens.

A policy of adopting every means of encouraging cruise ships to include Victoria as a port of call was decided on by the harbor and transportation group of Victoria Chamber of Commerce at a meeting Tuesday noon in the Colonial Inn. The group voted to offer full co-operation to Yarmouth Cruises Inc. which will operate between Victoria and California ports next year as well as to Alaska Cruise Lines which will operate the Yukon Star out of Vancouver and has decided to make four calls early next season at Victoria.

Further investigation of a catamaran harbor cleaning craft for the Inner Harbor will be undertaken by the group as well as a probe of traffic tie-ups during rush hours caused by raising of the Johnson Street bridge.

Red Guard Shoots Way To Freedom

BERLIN (Reuters) — A 19-year-old East German border guard exchanged sub-machine gun fire with other guards as he fled to the West in the night, police said today.

The refugee penetrated border barbed wire barriers and reached the West safely, West Berlin police reported.

Police also reported the successful escape of a 20-year-old member of the East German army who fled in uniform.

At least 41 persons have died trying to escape to West Berlin across the wall, a city government official reported.

Giving the West Berlin House of representatives a detailed account of the wall's 15-month history, senator Heinrich Albertz disclosed these figures:

Since Aug. 14, 1961, the day the Communists closed the border in Berlin and started building their wall, 29 persons were shot to death in attempts to escape to West Berlin. Twelve others died of injuries suffered in crossing.

Albertz said the number of dead is "sure to be higher."

Courts Stand Aloof From Foreign Taxes

No country can interfere with the excise laws of another, said Mr. Justice F. A. Sheppard in a written judgment handed down in B.C. Appeal Court here Wednesday.

The Appeal Court had dismissed an appeal by the United States government against a B.C. Supreme Court ruling that the U.S. cannot use a Canadian court for the collection of taxes for "a foreign state."

Mr. Justice Sheppard upheld the judgment of Mr. Justice Alan Maclean that Canadian courts cannot be used to collect taxes for "a foreign state."

He did this in a written decision following a verbal decision given in Vancouver last week.

Coffee House Latest Project Seeking Bastion Square Space

By LESLIE MILLIN
Times College Correspondent

Pundits of the coffee house craft looked at Victoria's old court house in Bastion Square on Tuesday and found it good.

Ghosts of barristers and judges, if they were looking in on the scene, would not have been offended, however, even if they realized the destiny that was being framed for the venerable old pile.

For the lady sparkplug behind the move to make it into a "fun arts" centre is herself the daughter and grand-daughter of barristers who once carried briefs through those gloomy halls.

Howie Bateman, owner of the Inquisition coffee house in Vancouver, thinks that Victoria could support one.

Erik Darling, internationally-famous folk singer, thinks the old court house could be one.

And Mrs. Beverley Banks, whose great-grandfather arrived in Victoria a century ago, thinks Victoria needs one.

For Relaxation

Its purpose would be two-fold: to provide entertainment at night for paying audiences, and to serve as a relaxation centre by day for the artists and craftsmen she hopes will make the old court house a cultural focus for their creativity.

"My intentions would be to provide a coffee and tea house featuring artists local and otherwise," she said.

"Admission price will be on the part of the performers. On different nights of the week we will feature folk songs, flamenco, jazz, plays, pantomime and so forth."

Mr. Bateman, whose coffee house in Vancouver has packed in the patrons for over a year, believes there would be sufficient clientele to make the place pay.

"Coffee houses offer people good entertainment without the high prices of a night club," he said.

He admitted, however, that a coffee house he opened in Nanaimo had closed "because it was not a paying proposition."

Patronage by university students might make a significant difference, he felt.

Projected location for the coffee house would be in the enormous room that once housed the Land Registry Office, now a dusty, pillared grotto.

"Each aspect is being carefully studied," she said, "never forgetting that this is Victoria, nor attempting anything that would discredit the old building."

"My father and grandfather, both barristers, used this building to defend individual rights and beliefs."

"In my own way, I shall attempt to do the same—Mr. Bennett willing."

Victoria veterans of the famed Black Watch Regiment will meet here Dec. 3 to form a Victoria branch of the Black Watch Association.

Veteran Roy Henley of Brentwood Bay said Wednesday night he is in touch with 15 veterans in Victoria.

"For anyone who has worn the red hackle, this is his organization. It is a welfare organization for ex-members of the Watch."

The organization has its headquarters in Montreal, home of the Royal Highlanders of Canada, but veterans of the British Black Watch are welcome.

The inaugural meeting of the Victoria branch will be held at Trafalgar branch 42 of the Royal Canadian Legion, 1417 Broad, at 8 p.m. Dec. 3. Anyone wanting transportation should contact Mr. Henley at GR 4-1796.

Ireland Cuts Tariffs

DUBLIN (AP) — The Irish government announced Tuesday night a general 10 per cent cut in protective tariffs on industrial products effective Jan. 1. A government statement described the cut as an initial step, anticipating Ireland's entry into the European Common Market, to eliminate protective tariffs by Dec. 31, 1969, end of the Common Market's transitional period.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 26-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question, Andy sends a complete 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Janice Ruth Teem, 12, Gastonia, N.C., for her question:

How Does the Polar Bear Protect His Eyes from the Arctic Glare?

There are plenty of polar bears in zoos around our land and most of us have had a chance to gape at the shaggy white giants. But these living conditions are very different from the frozen north which is their native home. A few naturalists have been to the Arctic to study the polar bear where he lives. The reports on his home life do not all agree—but everyone admires the mighty fellow.

His scientific name is Thaumatos and it means the sea bear. Most bears like to swim, but this fellow is the champion swimmer, diver and boater of the bear family. He is perhaps more at home in the water than on land. In plain language he is known as the white bear because, though other bears come in various colors, he is always white. He is also known as the polar bear because his native home is the northern polar regions in and around the Arctic Sea.

Now the polar bears move out from their icy igloos and trek inland for a feast of grass and green salad food. The cubs are ready and eager to toddle along behind mama's tail—which is too short to mention. The day goes long and through the months of midsummer the sun never sets. Through the long Arctic day the sun beams down bright rays onto ice and snow. The Arctic glare, however, is broken by stretches of water and grubby ice floes.

Bear Has Poor Sight

There are patches of land covered with grasses and scrubby bushes. The polar bear and his ancestors have been coping with the Arctic sunlight for countless ages and it does not bother him. Some say that the white giant has poor eyesight and some say he has better eyesight than most bears. In any case, his rather small eyes are set deep in his skull and shaded with masses of shaggy fur. This provides a pair of eye shades for him.

The polar bear is the largest meat eater to hunt on the land. He catches fish, seals and other meaty morsels in the sea—but on land he is a skilled tracker of foxes, birds and baby walrus. Invisible against the snow, he creeps up on his victim. Some naturalists claim that he puts his paws over his black nose to make himself even more invisible against the snow.

TEEN-AGE CANADA

'Going Steady' Not Growing Up

By JACK HUTTON

Teenagers who go steady with the same person all through high school never really grow up. They don't give themselves the chance.

That statement came this week from a psychologist friend, Dr. E. Jackson Francis, after I asked him what he thought of "going steady" during the teen years.

He was commenting on a survey just completed by our correspondents which showed that more teenagers seem to be going steady this fall than ever before in Canada.

"A frightening trend," said Dr. Francis, who for several years has been telling Canadians what's wrong with them. "It shakes my faith in the younger generation."

What's wrong with it, I asked. According to our survey, the average Canadian teenager tries going steady for anywhere from three months to a year and then plays the field again.

"That isn't bad," said Dr. Francis. "But I don't like to think of the minority who never feel secure unless they have a steady date to call."

"If they only realized it," he continued, "they're just as bad as the teenager who is tied to his mother's apron strings. They refuse to get out in the world and compete on their own two legs."

Know Others

"One of the purposes of high school is to get to know a great many other people and learn to get along with them. And that applies to members of the other sex. But what happens when they go out with only one person?"

"I'll tell you what happens. They look and sound more like old married couples than a lot of old married couples I know. They like the same interests, so they don't try anything new. They like the same people, so they never join new groups."

I hastened to interrupt. "Are you completely against going steady?" I asked. "You're making the whole thing sound pretty dreary. Surely it isn't all that bad."

"Like everything else, there are good and bad things about going steady," Dr. Francis answered. "A couple going steady learn things about each other which they wouldn't on a more temporary relationship. For instance, it's probably nice to worry about someone else's birthday."

"I would suggest," he added, "that teen-age couples who have been going together a long time watch out for danger signs. Are they going together simply because it's too much effort to adjust to someone else?"

"How long has it been since they thought of a new hobby? Or maybe they decided the other person wouldn't like it and dismissed the idea. What a silly thing to do."

Tragic Result

"The greatest tragedy that can happen to people like this," Dr. Francis concluded, "is that they go steady all through high school, going out with no one else, and then get married right after school."

"Too often," he said, "I've seen couples like that years later. One of them, or some

Victoria Firm Arranges Marriage by Appointment

By DESMOND BILL

People don't like it to be known that they met their spouse by appointment, says the grey-haired English woman who operates a marriage bureau anonymously in Victoria.

Mrs. X, who runs a service that is so discreet most of her clients do not even know her, spends her life studying the mating habits of others.

Like her service, she insisted on being anonymous when she talked to The Times about her work.

She is a descendant of a Canadian prime minister, has private means, is married for the second time and operates the bureau because she likes to do things that are different.

Before Mrs. X considers taking on a client she makes them fill out a complete dossier on themselves. Except that women sometimes take five years off their age and men sometimes add a few inches to their height, these questions are usually answered with rigorous honesty, she says.

Height Counts

Most women who approach the agency, and more women do than men, specifically state they will not consider for a husband a man who is not as tall as they are.

Middle-aged and older men usually want to meet someone who is 10 years younger than they are. Mrs. X says women are usually more sensible in the qualities they look for.

Young men and women over 30 with children are the two categories which Mrs. X has the greatest difficulty in arranging introductions.

Mrs. X does not have too many registrations from young single girls. And most men are not anxious to marry a woman with more than two children.

Mrs. X has also found that more Roman Catholic men than women register. Usually she will not introduce persons of different faiths to one another.

What sort of people register at a marriage bureau? Mrs. X says the background of many persons whose names are in her files would surprise most people.

Many Widowed

In fact she has found that 75 per cent of the people who approach her are among the better educated class. Many are widowed, some are divorced and a large proportion are single.

They contact Mrs. X through a newspaper box of file. After completing the questionnaire she sends them, they are interviewed in their home or their office by either Mrs. X or a representative.

If she has a couple who she thinks would suit she writes both parties and tells each of them about the other. She makes sure not to say enough to identify either.

Only if both parties signify an interest will she give them a name, address and telephone number. It is up to them to get in touch with one another. The man always telephones the woman.

Personalized

Since Mrs. X has only a small personalized service and has been in operation in Victoria only for 18 months she does not have too many files. The result is that many persons who register with her may have to wait for a time until someone she thinks suitable for them does register.

In the last year a dozen couples she has introduced have got married. They might only have talked to her on the phone or met her once but usually they write after the wedding and tell her all about it.

Only this week she got a

You, the Merchant...

You advertise.

Why?

To talk with people about your merchandise?

To keep your store name before people as a reminder of your services? To create store traffic?

Whatever your objective, your advertising message must be exposed to a responsive audience to be productive.

Our circulation audience? Well, people in our audience pay to get a copy of the paper—that's an indication of voluntary response.

Just how responsive are the readers of our paper? Our A.B.C.-audited circulation figures will tell you how many copies are sold, where they are sold, how much readers pay, and a host of other information.

Ask to see a copy of our latest A.B.C. report.

CHOICE LOCATION
FAIRFIELD
BUILDING LOTS

All services are in and there is no local improvement on sewer, storm drain and roads. Located on the corner of Fairfield Road and Street and half a block from Richmond and all building is protected by schools, churches, our services and Fairfield Plaza, Shopping Centre. These choice lots are one per acre so a new construction will be received and filed.

Councillors said the municipality's own recreation commission should be perfected first.

"We will be in a better position to take action on a joint recreation program once we discover what our needs are," said Coun. G. K. Sammon.

Council voted to ask the department of national defence for a two-block-long strip of land so a road could be built joining the two sections of Kindersley Road.

Councillors were told by the municipal solicitor that the municipality was not responsible for injuries or property damage caused by trees blown down on private property.

A motion requesting a cost estimate for an appraisal of municipal property was passed.

Overhead
Wires Down
In 2 Months

After seven years work, a 30-block downtown area should be completely free of power poles and 46 miles of overhead wires within two months.

The $3,500,000 underground wiring program — begun in 1956 by B.C. Electric and carried on as a series of winter work projects — is nearing completion, a B.C. Hydro spokesman said Wednesday.

So far half of the 200 wooden poles have been removed but, more significant, 90 per cent of the underground connections have been made to buildings in the area. The connections must be completed before all poles can come down.

At present, only two poles remain on Broad Street and most have been taken off Bianshard, View, Pandora and Courtney in the affected area.

SCHOOL DISTRICT No. 62 (SOOKE)
NOTICE OF ELECTION

PUBLIC NOTICE is hereby given to the electors of School District No. 62 (Sooke) that I require the presence of the said electors at the election to be held at the schoolroom in Victoria, B.C., on Monday the twenty-sixth day of November, 1962, at the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon, for the purpose of electing the members of the Board of Education to represent them at School Trustees for the hereinabove described election zones of the School District.

The newspaper commented that after the verdict the crowd "abandoned itself to merrymaking that was, to say the least, scandalous in the face of a verdict of legal acquittal that did not cancel the moral guilt of the protagonists."

"They confused, to say the least, pity toward the accused with the truth about the fact, a truth that does not permit confusion between good and evil, or of crime with compunction, of responsibility, of the commands of God with the subjective will," the editorial said.

A New Battleground Strathcona Park

Logging Issue Raised

Alpine country above timberline

Conservationists Ready to Fight

Sprawled in the centre of Vancouver Island is a 501,000-acre battleground where the forces of conservation and utilization may soon climax years of skirmishing with an outright grapple of theories, principles and needs.

The area is Strathcona Park, first of British Columbia's four great wilderness playgrounds.

In the 51 years since this pocket empire of mountain and lake, stream and timber was sequestered by act of the provincial legislature, it has witnessed few changes other than those imposed by nature in her cycle of growth, decay and regeneration.

Today, however, the situation is no longer static.

The miners have gained a toehold in Strathcona. The loggers are edging toward its virgin Douglas fir stands.

The vacationing public, given limited access to Strathcona's splendors by a hydro-electric power development which opened its main waterway to smallboat owners, is eager for roads, trails and campsites.

The beleaguered parks branch of the Department of Conservation and Recreation, while firm in its look but don't touch stand, is casting increasingly nervous glances over its shoulder.

What, then, is the answer to the Strathcona problem—one which is being duplicated in greater or less degree all over North America as populations expand and natural resources dwindle?

Can a workable marriage be effected between conservation and utilization, a pair not always compatible in double harness?

Profit Adds Complication

In an attempt to suggest at least a partial solution, the Times has called on those best fitted to speak with authority on a subject hazed in certain aspects by emotion and complicated by the human desire for profit.

Today, Friday and Saturday, we offer the amalgam of fact and opinion turned up by that survey.

All-out conservationists—bitterly opposed to any tampering with Strathcona's present status as a "Class A" or completely primitive wilderness park—regard the logging industry as the prime threat to their ideal.

The loggers have swept to Strathcona's borders, following the timber inland across the east coast flats and ridges. This year, in a move aimed at obtaining funds with which to add a more accessible and desirable block to its limits, the parks branch has redesignated 26,000 acres on the western slopes as "Class B" parkland in which commercial logging may be carried on.

But to date, the only logging permitted within the "Class A" boundaries has been salvage made essential by fire and flood.

Since no direct application has been made to the government for logging rights in Strathcona, it might seem the parks branch is jumping the gun.

This isn't the case. The pressure is on, the spearhead

Blaze Battled On Ship

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP)—Coast guard headquarters here said the crew of the fire-swept Greek freighter, Captain George, which is loaded with explosives, was still battling the flames at 3:15 p.m. EST, today. Coast Guard headquarters in New York earlier had reported the ship abandoned at mid-morning.

A spokesman at the United States Coast Guard base here said the situation aboard the 1,187-ton freighter remained critical, with gale winds and huge waves buffeting the ship.

A tanker—the Virginia, flying the Liberian flag—was reported to be standing by the cargo ship, which has a crew of 25.

Coast guard planes were reported here rushing also to the aid of the American schooner Curlew. Coast guard headquarters in New York said the 65-foot two-masted schooner had been abandoned but officials here said her six-man crew was still aboard.

The Greek freighter was reported wallowing in stormy seas 300 miles northeast of Bermuda and the schooner 90 miles northwest of Bermuda.

At 3 p.m., the coast guard in New York reported interception of messages from two unidentified ships in the area of the Captain George, saying: "Fire must be getting close to dynamite on board. Have heard one of escorting ships advising all ships to move away from Ss. Captain George."

STARTED BY EXPLOSION

The freighter, Captain George, caught fire after a terrific explosion Wednesday night. There was no indication of the cause of the explosion.

The crew battled the spreading flames through the night in the storm that kicked up some waves reported as high as 66 feet.

A U.S. Coast Guard plane circling overhead radioed at 9 a.m. the fire was out of control. The 450-foot-long freighter, after leaving New Orleans, stopped at St. Marys, Ga., to pick up 400 tons of commercial explosives—described in one report by the coast guard in New York as "explosive bombs."

The government suspended equality before the law and constitutional articles guaranteeing protection of life and personal property, protection against arrest and detention in certain cases, and freedom of speech, association, movement and residence.

Meanwhile, a fleet of trucks today was moving emergency civil supplies to the northeast border state of Assam to overcome a five-week-old stoppage of river shipments caused by a steamer crew strike in east Pakistan.

ARTHUR MAYSE

As all who know me can testify, I prefer to seek shelter when the big winds of controversy blow. But one point raised by our Victoria College students as they paddle around their leaky new campus, I can't let pass unchallenged.

This is a false premise based on a piece of inductive thinking. It runs, roughly, thus:

"Men fight wars. At 18, I am considered old enough to wear my country's uniform in war. Ergo, I am a man, and the law lags when it denies me a man's right to buy and drink liquor."

The false premise is that when the army gets ahold of you, it will consider you a man. Once in—once issued a number and a uniform—you become in the eyes of the military as but a little child.

The army is your father and your mother, and while it expects you to think for yourself if no one's around to give orders, in general you do exactly what you're told.

And—sorry, young gentlemen—one thing the army tells its children in no uncertain terms is to keep out of the wet canteens until or unless they're 21.

I'm not convinced of this, but it seems to me if drinking age is to be lowered, the young male should be allowed to patronize Col. McGuligan's emporiums when he's judged mature enough to help muddle the affairs of his province by voting. In British Columbia, that comes at 19.

This change, I wouldn't fight. I was trifling with hard liquor at that age, and so, too, whether they care to admit it or not, were a good many of your fathers and mothers.

I would, however, point out that with rights and privileges goes responsibility. If you pre-pose to run with the wolves, more is entailed than howling with them.

In simplest terms, if you drink, don't leave a mess behind you. Watch where you drop the empties. And if drinking lands you in any of the numerous jackpots that can stem from a bent elbow, follow through on this involved and difficult business of being a man by standing up to the consequences.

Let me warn you also that legalized drinking won't be anything like as much fun as pointing up youth's rebellion against things as they are, with a few shots from an unsanctioned bottle. Take away the tang of the illicit and you may find you haven't much left but a hangover.

Personally, I've never subscribed to the belief that our young are hell-bound, and every now and then something happens to confirm my optimism.

A couple of weeks ago, I, or rather my car, chose to run out of gas 30 feet from the college parking lot that opens on Foul Bay Road. The next car out eased to the curb.

I asked the student driver if he'd mind dropping me at a service station.

"You might have to walk back," he said. "I'll go down and get you some gas."

This he did, driving out of his way to help a stranger. His name, which I'm going to embarrass him by printing, is Al Murray, he lives at 476 Davida, and I hope he wins several fat scholarships.

THE ARMY'S 'DOLLIGHTED'

Gay assortment of dolls, repaired and dressed by Mrs. Mildred Lawrence of Langford, will be sold as Christmas gifts next week at Salvation Army's Thrift Store, 529 Johnson and at the Army's Langford store at Gold-stream. Sorting the dolls is Major Jessie Jannison who says: "They are wonderful gifts and their sale will help our Christmas work at the social service centre, 521 Johnson." (Times photo by Halkett).

11th Hour Push For 23 Agencies

A last-ditch canvass is under way to prevent Greater Victoria's United Appeal campaign from falling $13,000 short of its $360,000 objective when the drive ends Friday.

If this fails, the 23 health and welfare agencies participating in the drive will be forced to limit their services next year.

Letters have been sent to 500 professional men in the city urging them to give more, as this division has fallen short of its quota by $5,000.

Navy personnel will be encouraged to lend more support to the campaign.

Campaign chairman Justin Harbord said the sailors, in past years a pillar of strength for the campaign, were "a major disappointment" this year.

Mr. Boulbee, whose firm short of its objective.

A copy of the letter sent by the firm to Mr. Tindall was also sent to the Times, which published the BBB bulletin several weeks ago.

"This is all confirmed in the letter I received from the company and a press release put out by the company," Mr. Tindall said.

"We are very fortunate that the press coverage of City Hall activities is so good. There is more information disseminated by the press and radio than in most areas."

Ald. McLean replied that press coverage reported committee and council meetings

but not all the activities of aldermen. Some aldermen received more publicity than others.

He suggested there was some inevitable "distortion" in publicity because some alde-

men headed more controversial committees.

He singled out the "smoke committee chairman" (Ald.

Geoffrey Edgeland) as receiving more publicity at times

than the health and welfare committee members "although there is no comparison in the importance of their work."

STRATHCONA PARK

What, then, is the answer to the Strathcona problem—one which is being duplicated in greater or less degree all over North America as populations expand and natural resources dwindle?

Can a workable marriage be effected between conservation and utilization, a pair not always compatible in double harness?

Profit Adds Complication

In an attempt to suggest at least a partial solution, the Times has called on those best fitted to speak with authority on a subject hazed in certain aspects by emotion and complicated by the human desire for profit.

Today, Friday and Saturday, we offer the amalgam of fact and opinion turned up by that survey.

All-out conservationists—bitterly opposed to any tampering with Strathcona's present status as a "Class A" or completely primitive wilderness park—regard the logging industry as the prime threat to their ideal.

The loggers have swept to Strathcona's borders, following the timber inland across the east coast flats and ridges. This year, in a move aimed at obtaining funds with which to add a more accessible and desirable block to its limits, the parks branch has redesignated 26,000 acres on the western slopes as "Class B" parkland in which commercial logging may be carried on.

But to date, the only logging permitted within the "Class A" boundaries has been salvage made essential by fire and flood.

Since no direct application has been made to the government for logging rights in Strathcona, it might be assumed the parks branch is jumping at shadows. This isn't the case. The pressure is on, the spearhead a South Island company which has come out flatfooted with the claim that Strathcona fir stands should be opened to commercial logging.

This company, Victoria Plywood Limited, is supplied with "peeler" fir logs in part by its subsidiary, Sooke Lake Lumber Company. For some years past, it has been filling out its log requirements by purchase from other timber owners.

Its spokesman is Victoria Plywood secretary Alex Hendry, who speaks plainly in his company publication. Here is a digest of Mr. Hendry's views:

"Since any program of development in Strathcona or the other wilderness parks will cost money, it will have to compete with all the other demands on the public purse."

Mature Stand of Timber

"Unless, therefore, we can find some means of finding the required revenue, it appears highly unlikely that there will be any development in the parks for many years to come."

Virtually the whole of Strathcona Park is covered with a mature stand of timber of which the predominant species is Douglas fir. It is, therefore, a very valuable tract from a commercial point of view. A plan to log this timber on a long term basis would automatically provide the access roads and camp sites, and also the funds for other park purposes at no cost to the public. Probably of even greater general benefit, though, would be the hundreds of new jobs that such a program would create.

"Douglas fir lumber," Mr. Hendry continues, "has always enjoyed a preferred position in the markets of the world, and competent market observers state that there will be no enough Douglas fir plywood to satisfy the demand within five years."

"One of the principal objections raised to logging operations as we know them, is the scene of utter desolation that they create. People visualize the total area surrounding Buttle Lake shorn of its timber, and in its place a mass of half-burned slash blocking each little creek. While slash is inevitable, it can be gathered and thoroughly burned."

Further, logging can be conducted on a patch system so that whole mountainsides are not denuded at one fell swoop. This system is, in fact, standard practice on Forest Service timber sales because it assists in regeneration and reduces the fire hazard.

Many are opposed to logging pack timber because they feel that some logging operator would make large profits from the operation. Present Forest Service selling methods render this nigh impossible, but to banish the last doubt, the project could be carried out by the service or the parks branch.

Feasibility of Plan Shown

"Such a course has several advantages, for it would then be possible to guarantee that everything was done to meet the highest standard. Roads would be built on a permanent basis and stringent slash removal requirements adopted. The usual industry planting programs would, of course, ensure rapid regeneration. As a matter of fact, the Greater Victoria Water District has already clearly demonstrated the feasibility of such a plan."

"Our confers are extremely long-lived, but the major portion of those in Strathcona Park are mature. This means that we cannot normally expect them to remain standing for much more than 50 or 100 years. They will then be replaced by young growth either naturally or artificially. In other words, in spite of our very best endeavors, our descendants 200 years from now will never see the type of forest that now clothes the mountains of Strathcona Park. To continue the present policy of non-development would, therefore, be a costly and useless sacrifice."

Mr. Hendry, to whom we will return later, speaks bluntly and well. He deserves a hearing—not as mouthpiece for our woods industries, a role which he emphatically disclaims—but as a lumberman of wide experience.

But his claims, according to Forest Service and parks branch experts, don't hold water.

"Our fir reserves," one top-echelon civil servant commented to the Times, "are much more extensive than Mr. Hendry suggests. The point seems to be that those reserves aren't available to his company."

Just how extensive are our Douglas fir reserves, and what, precisely, does Strathcona offer in the way of mature fir timber?

On Friday, the Times will consider these and other questions raised by those who would turn the power saws loose in Strathcona Park.

QUEBEC

Premier Lesage, 50, was re-elected in Quebec West with an increased majority over the Union Nationale opponent he defeated in 1960.

Mr. Johnson, 47, easily retained Saguenay which he has held since 1946.

Mrs. Claire Kirkland-Casgrain, first woman elected to the legislature, won the most impressive margin—about 50,000 votes—over lone Union Nationale opponent. She first won the Jacques-Cartier seat last year in a by-election.

Mrs. Jeannette Pratt, the sole Communist candidate, lost her deposit in Montreal St. James. Out of 67 straight two-way contests, the Liberals won 46 and the Union Nationale 21.

The 11 candidates entered by L'Action Provinciale—Quebec's newest party which came

'Cuba Before Berlin'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chancellor Adenauer winds up two days of White House talks today in apparent agreement with President Kennedy that a Cuba settlement must precede any new Western peace move in Berlin.

Kennedy long has pushed exploratory talks with the Russians on the German problem. U.S. authorities believe a Cuban settlement might open the way for East-West negotiations on a wide range of issues. Adenauer has been wary of negotiating on Berlin on the ground that the West stands more to lose than gain.

Wednesday, it was reported Kennedy and Adenauer agreed that contributions to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization by the European Allies should be stepped up. It was understood that the discussion dealt with NATO's European members in general, not singling out West Germany.

'No Base' U.S. Warns

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States warned the Soviet Union Wednesday not to build a naval base in Cuba that would threaten the western hemisphere.

State department spokesman Lincoln White said that if the Soviet Union does build one, "I would assume appropriate measures would be taken."

Too Many Ifs In K Letter

WASHINGTON (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev has sent President Kennedy an offer to pull Russian jet bombers out of Cuba but attached so many "ifs" that a Cuban settlement is not within sight, authoritative sources said today.

Khrushchev's proposal, it was learned, was received several days ago and is being discussed at negotiations—presumably in New York where U.S. and Soviet representatives have been trying to hammer out an agreement.

Exactly what conditions the Soviet premier attached to his offer were not disclosed.

lands of less developed countries.

The precise date of the conference was yet to be determined. However, it would open at the earliest possible date in 1963.

Canada would be represented by Trade Minister Hensel and possibly other cabinet ministers.
